TELEGRAMS FROM HARRISBURGH.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

Our forces have slowly retired, and are now in and around the fortifications of Harrisburgh. The enemy is advancing slowly, and in all probability will soon commence an attack. Gen. SMITH has made proper disposition of his troops.

Throughout the day men have been coming to the defence of the city, in response to the Governor's proclamation. Among the number are a great many contrabands. They were all furnished with guns and ammunition, and sent across the Susquehanna.

Capt. BRISBANE, Chief of Cavalry, who was on a reconnoissance this afternoon, reports the rebel scouts to have been within three miles of our pickets.

The reports from the direction of York are very conflicting. An extra train was run to Philadelphia at 12, noon.

LATER.—The enemy fired several shots from a position west of Oyster Point this afternoon. WHIT.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

The enemy is within four miles of our works, advancing.

The firing of the artillery is distinctly heard.

The troops are all in position, awaiting the attack.

The authorities feel confident of their ability to repulse the rebels.

A battle will probably take place before night.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, so far, is safe.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—1 o'clock P. M.

A conflict is now going on in this vicinity, and the cannonading can be heard here.

No particulars have yet been received.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—6 P. M.

The rebels are within three miles, and are throwing shells.

Our troops are within the intrenchments and will make a bold stand.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—8 P. M.

The bridge over the Susquehanna at Columbia is in flames.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—Midnight.

The city, to-day, has been comparatively quiet, considering the near approximation of the enemy.

The trains departing from here have been crowded with persons from the city.

York has been occupied, and a portion of the bridges on the Northern Central Railroad, this side of that place, have been burned.

When our troops fell back from Carlise, they left in the barracks equipments for one company of cavalry and one regiment of infantry, and 20,000 rations, which have fallen into the hands of the enemy. There is a report that the barracks have been burned' but it has not been confirmed.

The report of the capture of York last night was rather premature. In the afternoon, the Chief Burgess of the City in compahy with seme prominent citizens, hearing the rebels were coming, started out to meet them to surrender the city. They had to go seven miles before they met the advance. In the meantime the operator, believing the chief burgess had been captured telegraphed that the rebels were coming into the town, and then left. A fight took place late this afternoon at Wrightsville, opposite Columbia.

The troops which were guarding the Northern Central Railroad retreated to Columbia Bridge on the approach of the enemy, and all crossed to this side of the river, except Col. FRICK's regiment, who remained at Wrightsville to guard the bridge. The rebels attacked him in heavy force, and in order to save his men he was forced to cross to Columbia. The magnificent bridge was then burned to prevent the rebels from reaching this side of the river.

The Governor has information that the rebels are at Bainbridge, twelve miles above Columbia, with a pontoon train sufficiently large to construct a bridge.

The rebels that drove our men from Sterrett's Gap yesterday, and then moved toward Duncannon, have returned to the Gap.

No demonstration has been made on the Pennsylvania Railroad in that direction to-day, so far as is known.

Col. WYNKOOP has been appointed by Gen. COUCH, Chief of Cavalry in this Department—Capt. BRISBIN having been ordered to his regiment.

Troops under the new call are rapidly arriving. Two companies of colored troops, composed of citizens of this place, were armed to day and sent across the river.

Col. JENNINGS' regiment, which had the skirmish at Gettysburgh, arrived here to-day. He lost about 300 men in prisoners and stragglers. The officers were sent to Richmond and the men paroled. Some of the latter have arrived here.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday June 28—Midnight.

It rests with the enemy when the fight shall open. Our forces in and out of Fort Washington are ready and in good spirits. At six P. M. EWELL's pickets were discovered only two or three miles off. Gen. COUCH and the Governor, with their assistants, have been busied night and day in perfecting arrangements for defence, and the prospect of success to our arms, in the event of a spirited engagement, is better this evening than any time before. The fight promises to be steadily contested by our volunteers. All KNIPE's command is now withdrawn to this neighborhood.

The inhabitants of Harrisburgh are not disheartened. No panic as yet, nor prospect of any.

We cannot yet estimate accurately EWELL's strength.

The New-York Seventy-first has seen great hardships, but is in good condition, having not lost a man nor a particle of equipage of any sort.

A great many ladies are determined to stay through the trouble, no matter what may come. But little valuable property can fall into rebel hands should our troops be overpowered by superior numbers.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—Midnight.

The artillery firing heard to-day was a skirmish between the enemy's advance and our outpost. No damage is known to have been done on either side. It occurred about five miles from here. Our troops then fell back, and up to the present time the rebel advance is four miles from here. The authorities expect an attack to-morrow.

The Governor has received notice of 25,000 men, who have enlisted under the last call.

TELEGRAMS FROM LANCASTER.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sunday, June 28, 1863.

The great bridge over the Susquehanna near Columbia is at this moment in flames. The firmament is illuminated by it even at this distance. It was fired by our own people to prevent the enemy from crossing.

Two rebel companies of cavalry attacked four companies of the Twentieth Pennsylvania regiment last night below York, but were driven off badly whipped. Our loss was insignificant.

There is no fighting at Harrisburgh yet.

A skirmish occurred in Wrightsville, opposite Columbia, three hours ago. Col. FRICK's men fought the enemy in their rifle-pits gallantly, till surrounded and overpowered. Over one hundred were captured, and the rest retreated across the bridge, which was then fired.

The bridge was one mile and a quarter long, and worth a million.

The excitement here now amounts to a panic. Everything is leaving.

The rolling stock of the Northern Central and that of the Hanover Branch Roads have all passed down.

TROOPS ORGANIZING IN SCRANTON, PENN.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sunday, June 28.

A full company composed of our best and largest business men and other citizens is now organized. One other company is full, and another will be filled to-night. The two latter are to receive a bounty of $80 per man, the funds being subscribed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad and the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Companies, and the citizens. Stirring speeches have been made by the clergy, Hon. JOHN BRISBIN, and others, and everybody is wakened up. The troops are expected to go to Harrisburgh in the morning.

THE EXCITEMENT IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28.

The excitement in this city is intense. Third-street is thronged with people awaiting the news.

The merchants have resolved to close their stores and recruit a regiment immediately.

The Union League has also started in the matter.

The Corn Exchange Guard have a recruiting party marching through the streets.

THE EXCITEMENT IN NORRISTOWN.

NORRISTOWN, PENN., Sunday, June 28.

The manufacturers have determined to close their works until the rebels are driven from the State, and have raised $10,000 to pay the wages of all who volunteer during their absence. Five hundred men will leave for Harrisburgh in the morning.

A QUESTIONABLE REPORT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28.

The report from Harrisburgh, at midnight of Saturday, that the rebels had arrived opposite Duncannon, at the junction of the Juniata and Susquehanna Rivers, is probably an error, as the telegraph line remains in order to Pittsburgh this (Sunday) morning.

GEN. DANA TO THE PHILADELPHIANS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28—2:30 A. M.

Gen. DANA has entered upon his duties, and yesterday issued the following address:

HEADQUARTERS, PHILADELPHIA, June 27, 1863.

CITIZENS OF PHILADELPHIA: Prepare to defend your homes. The traitors who have spread desolation in the southern counties of your State, and carried into captivity free men and women, because they were black and under your protection, approach your city. Their strategy is sufficiently well understood to make it certain that their object is Philadelphia. Do the citizens of the Quaker City expect more favorable treatment at their hands than others? Arise now in your might: shake off your apathy, and show, by rallying rapidly and arming yourselves to meet the enemy and drive him back, that you deserve the blessings of a home. To stand idly now would invite suspicion either of treachery or cowardice. I urge upon the citizens of Philadelphia that they close all places of manufacture at noon, and all other places of business at 3 o'clock P. M. of each day, devoting the remainder of the day to military organization and instruction. Let companies of from sixty to a hundred men each be rapidly organized, and having chosen their officers, let them report their organization at headquarters, and stand ready for service at a moment's notice. There is not a moment to be lost, and therefore let us not squander away valuable time.

N. I. T. DANA, Major-Gen. Commanding.

A DESPERATE CAVALRY FIGHT.

A Squadron of Scott's 900 Cavalry Surrounded and Cut Up.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, June 27.

A squadron of Scott's Nine Hundred cavalry, under Maj. REMINGTON, on their way to Centreville, this morning, encountered near Fairfax the Sixth Virginia cavalry, and dashed at them with the sabre. The Major made two charges, and drove the enemy for three miles into a wood, and there encountered a superior force, that checked him with the fire of carbines. The fight from the beginning to the end was fierce. Its termination, from the overwhelming disparity of numbers, was disastrous.

Maj. REMINGTON, after having had his horse shot twice, cut his way out and made his escape with eighteen men. Five have come in since. Eighty are reported as either killed, wounded or missing. Among them are Capt. DAGWELL, Capt. CAMPBELL and Lieut. HAZLETON. The companies were B and C.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Capt. DUGWELL, of Company C, Scott's Nine Hundred, has been heard of as in FITZHUGH LEE's hands, wounded in the neck, but not severely.

Only six dead of the squadron were found to-day on the battle-ground.

A Raid by Fitzhugh Lee at Annandale.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

A large number of rebel cavalry under command of FITZHUGH LEE, yesterday made a dash into Annandale, capturing several sutlers who were in the vicinity, and burning a number of Hospital stores, sutlers' wagons, etc.

All the papers found in the neighborhood were gathered up and burned. The sutlers' goods were taken off. Some dozen parties connected with the Commissary department, among them Mr. LEE of Alexandria, who were out reconnoitering, were also made prisoners. Lieut. DAGWELL, with about a dozen men in charge of some rebel prisoners, were also captured, and DAGWELL shot in the neck. Most of the rebels had our blue pants, and many of them were mounted on horses marked U. S. The whole number captured by them amounts to about forty. Mr. S. ZETZER, Army purveyor, was captured and paroled by Gen. LEE. Mr. BEECH, clerk to the former gentleman, escaped by secreting himself on their approach.

THE TWO ARMIES.

Gen. Hooker Reported Relieved of His Command of the Army of the Potomac.

GEN. MEADE PUT IN HIS PLACE.

The Entire Army on the North Side of the Potomac.

THE MOVEMENTS OF LEE.

The Whole Rebel Army Entering Pennsylvania.

Destruction of the Northern Central Railroad.

WASHIGTON, D. C., Sunday, June 28—11 P. M.

We accept as truth the rumor that Gen. Hooker has been relieved of the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Meade put in his place.

The defences of Washington are sufficient against legions of mounted tatterdemalions. The National Capital is safe.

The return game between the Army of the Potomac and the Army of Virginia may be played this week. Let the country wait for the score.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Gen. HOOKER was last night relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac, at his own request, and Gen. MEADE appointed his successor.

THE NEWS IN HARRISBURGH.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

Official information has been received here that Gen. HOOKER is relieved and Gen. MEADE appointed his successor.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, June 27.

The entire Army of the Potomac is now on the north side of the Potomac. The respective positions of the various corps it would not be proper to indicate.

A portion of our cavalry is operating in the advance, and the remainder in the rebel rear.

There are no rebels now on South Mountain or at Boonsboro. They appear to be concentrating near Sharpsburgh. A. P. HILL's corps crossed the river at Williamsport yesterday, and are now in Hagerstown. The whole rebel army is now on this side of the Potomac.

BRADLEY T. JOHNSON's brigade was in Smithsburgh yesterday, passing toward Gettysburgh. Col. LETCHER's regiment of cavalry accompanied them.

Wagon trains, loaded with grain, have passed through Smithsburgh toward Hagerstown, retiring from Peennsylvania; also large droves of cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses. The negroes captured throughout the country were impressed by the rebels into their service as drivers.

The rebels had a number of small mountain howitzers with them.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, June 27.

Information was received at about 5 o'clock this afternoon, from Glen Rock, that the rebels were then at Hanover Junction, tearing up the railroad track. The operator there left as they approached, and came down to Glen Rock, from which point he communicated these facts.

The following information relative to the rebel movements may be considered as reliable:

The last of LONGSTREET's army corps passed through Hagerstown yesterday morning, going toward Pennsylvania. It was preceded by A. P. HILL's corps. Gen. LEE also passed through Hagerstown yesterday.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28—Noon.

The telegraph is working to Glen Rock, on the Northern Central Railroad line, this morning, six miles this side of Hanover Junction.

Rebel Raid Across the Potomac at Seneca Mills.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28.

It is reported that a rebel force of three thousand cavalry with seven pieces of artillery, crossed the Potomac at Seneca, Montgomery County, last night and this morning, took the Darnstown road, as if for the purpose of attempting to reach either the Washington road or the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The rebels have burnt two bridges this side of York, and two beyond, so far as known. A train went up the Northern Central road to-day as far as Parkton. No rebels had been seen at Glen Rock, and the force at Hanover Junction had left, going it is supposed, toward York.

IMPORTANT FROM TENNESSEE.

Gen. Rosecrans' Army in Motion Toward the Enemy.

Camp Broken on Wednesday Morning Last.

The Troops Advancing Toward Duck River in Three Columns.

Possible Retreat of Bragg on Chattanooga.

Reported Capture of Three Thousand Rebels at Hoover's Gap.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MURFREESBORO, TENN., Wednesday, June 24, 1863.

I have barely more than time to announce to you by this morning's mail, that the whole Army of the Cumberland is in motion. The silence of five months is broken by the tramp of solid columns marching on to meet the enemy once more—the same enemy which on the first day of the present year was driven from his position at this place.

Bright and early this morning, the camps were broken, and the army began its onward march, with twelve days' provisions—three in the haversacks of the men, and nine in wagons.

McCOOK's corps (the Twentieth) has the right, THOMAS' (the Fourteenth) has the centre, and CRITTENDEN's (the Twenty-first) has the left. These columns move by different but converging roads—the objective point being the enemy's position along the Duck River. Our flanks are well covered by our excellent cavalry force—one division, (MITCHEL's being on the right, the other, TURCHIN's) on the left.

The distance from Murfreesboro to BRAGG's headquarters at Shelbyville, by the direct road, running due south from here, is twenty-eight miles, and our right will have this road; but our centre and left, which have to make detours by way of Bradyville and Manchester, will have a distance of double that extent to traverse.

It will of course depend entirely on the enemy how much fighting we have to do before reaching his front on Duck river; but the probability is that we shall have skirmishing almost all the way, with the advanced force and corps of observation on front and flank. This is the customary policy of the enemy, as it gives them time to find out our intentions and make dispositions to meet them. A trifling force can make a whole column halt and form line of battle two or three times a day. It is probable, therefore, that although even with the circuit we shall make, we are only two good days' march from the rebel position, yet it will be Saturday, Sunday or Monday, before we get into a general engagement.

The rebels will be able to take up a good defensive position on the line of the Duck. They have rifle-pits covering the front of Shelbyville for four or five miles, across east and west, and another line it is said from Shelbyville to the Normandy Hills; but it is not believed that their artificial defences are of a very formidable nature. The Duck River is at the present moment quite low and fordable at most places.

Our strategic manœuvre, I take it, will be on the enemy's right flank, and will endeavor if possible to grasp his communications.

Many here are of the opinion that BRAGG will not make a stand at Shelbyville, Tullahoma, or, indeed, anywhere along the line of the Duck; but that he will, after embarrassing our progress as much as possible, fall back to the line of the Tennessee River, in the vicinity of Chattanooga.

It is, of course, possible that he may do so; and this would certainly be a course that would not jump with our wishes, as we should have made our march for nothing, and added thirty miles to a line of communications already too deep. A movement against Chattanooga at this time and with our present force is, I fear, out of the question.

There are, however, several considerations that will prompt him to hold on to his present position; and if he abandons it, it will be because his force has lately been so much reduced that he fears a battle. His retreat will give up to us the whole of this region of Middle Tennessee, in which a crop of cereals is at the present moment ripening, unprecedented in its yield. They are so anxious to have command of it, that they have for some days had a detail of ten men from each company of the ninety-six regiments of BRAGG's army out gathering it in. We shall be very apt to disturb their harvesting operations. It also brings us into a dense slave population, hitherto untapped, where the emancipation proclamation will have a fine field of operation, under an army which marches on

"Shouting the battle cry of Freedom."

With reference to the all-important question touching the strength of BRAGG's force, that is a matter difficult to settle. In a former letter I told you that several brigades had gone to reinforce JOHNSTON, but gave it as the opinion of the best authorities that no great material reduction of the rebel force had taken place. There seems now to be good evidence that within the past two or three days, a considerable diminution has taken place, and almost the whole of Cheatem's division is reported to have gone to Mississippi. It this be really so, it of course adds to our chances of whipping the rebel army, but it also does to the chance that Bragg will fall back without giving us an opportunity for battle. If he adopts this latter policy, you must not indulge in expectations of much in the way of pursuit. BRAGG is a master at retreat; he moves with an an excessive lightness, and he has his line of retreat entirely open.

If you will recur to the considerations presented in the elaborate article on the strategic relations of the forces in this theatre of war, published in the TIMES a fortnight ago, you will see that we have little reason to hope that we shall be able to get a decisive battle on the line of the Duck River. I may say that these views are shared by all sound heads in this army. They seemed to indicate the prudence of holding ourselves here until a solution of the complications on the Mississippi would authorize our entering on a campaign from which we might really hope for great ulterior results. The reasons for an advance, however, now press much stronger than they did a fortnight ago.

Although in previous speculations the weight of opinion has gone against an advance, at the present time, yet, now that it is actually inaugurated, a great activity, spirit and vigor are displayed, and everybody is bending his energies to the great task.

My last letter will have given you an idea of the superb condition, both morally and materially, of this army. The hackneyed phrase is literally true—the men are "eager for the fray."

It is possible that we may be more fortunate than I at present look for. I pray Heaven we may be! We may be able, by a rapid and vigorous advance, to compel a battle that will be more or less decisive, and a cavalry expedition to cut off their railroad communications with Chattanooga is on the programme. We shall also have the harvests to which they are looking to feed their already pinched soldiery withal. If we get command of the line of the Duck, either with or without a battle, it will probably be made an eventual base. The railroad track between here and Shelbyville, with the exception of about two miles, is said to be entirely undisturbed, and we shall be able to bring up supplies rapidly. For the present we take twelve days' rations—three days in the haversacks of the men and nine in the wagons.

I write, booted and spurred—my horse held at the door by the Orderly—and have merely time to close this letter, as Gen. ROSECRANS and Staff, whom I accompany, are already (1 P. M.) mounting for the road. Headquarters to-night will be at Dug Hollow Spring, on the Manchester pike road, fifteen miles from Murfreesboro. WILLIAM SWINTON.

P. S.—The use of the telegraph is interdicted the Press. W. S.

Reported Capture of Three Thousand Rebels —Gallant Cavalry Fight, etc.

LOUISVILLE, Sunday, June 28.

To-day's Nashville Union reports that one division of the Federal army captured 3,000 rebels, on Saturday, when going through Hoover's Gap. There are no further particulars.

The Union also states that the Seventeenth Indiana mounted infantry, being surrounded by four regiments of rebel infantry, cut their way through, taking a number of prisoners. Col. MILLER, of Gen. NEGLEY's division, is reported wounded in the eye.

A special dispatch from Manchester, Tennesse, to the Louisville Journal, says, Col. WILDER's mounted infantry dashed into Manchester, capturing a large party of rebels, including Capt. ANDERSON of the First Kentucky (rebel) cavalry. WILDER's scouts captured yesterday a courier from MORGAN and WHEELER's command with important dispatches.

BRAGG reviewed the rebel troops at Hoover's Gap on the morning of the battle.

Col. WILDER's forces burned the trestle-work, yesterday, on the Manchester and Tullahoma Road.

The Chattanooga Rebel, of the 25th, says firing continues with increasing rapidity at Vicksburgh.

AMUSEMENTS.

The record of the week is unusually scanty. Not a single novelty has been produced at any of the Broadway theatres, of which three only remain open. The regular season is ended, and we are now in the dead calm that precedes the fitful Summer one. Mr. WALLACK brought his campaign to an end on Monday last. Every one will be glad to hear that it was in the highest degree successful. Half a dozen theatres, conducted with similar purpose and pains, would also succeed in New-York. The company will reassemble in September next for the regular performances. It is rumored also that a few of the number will essay a Summer season, playing light pieces in the approved style. Mr. MARK SMITH commences his experiment at the Winter Garden on Monday next, and will be supported by an excellent company. Miss EMILY THORNE and Mr. DAN SETCHELL are both members of it, and the personelle generally is of a kind to warrant the most pleasant anticipations. Mr. MARK SMITH has a widespread and well-earned reputation, which will, we hope, avail him now.

The stirring and excellent drama of the "Duke's Motto" continues to attract overwhelming houses to Niblo's Garden. It remains, of course, on the bill until further notice. At LAURA KEENE's theatre the play of the "Wives of Paris" is still the attraction. It shows a little of everything, and exhibits the peculiar excellencies of Mrs. ENGLISH's company. At Barnum's Museum, in addition to the usual attractions, the new drama of the "Duke's Device" will be repeated.

We have on several occasions spoken of the Stereopticon now on exhibition at Irving Hall. The science of optics seldom come to us in so acceptable a form. The instrument, indeed, has created a new pleasure, enabling the cosmopolitan to revisit the scenes of his travels, and the stay-at-home to see something of the world. Many new views have been added during the past week; a special exhibition was given for the purpose of introducing them on Tuesday last. The repertoire of the Stereopticon is so extensive, that frequent visits are necessary to do it justice. The exhibition is one that is peculiarly suited to the Summer months. There is no trouble from the heat, the gas being turned down in the hall during the performance. We heartily recommend every one to witness this remarkable entertainment, which we may here add gains much of its interest from the well chosen remarks of Mr. ROSE, who briefly explains the pictures.

Mr. MARETZEK's season at the Academy of Music will commence immediately on the termination of the American Institute Fair which is held in that building during the month of September. The impresario is already making preparations for the campaign. Mme. MEDORI will return in time for the opening, and it is said that PETRELLA, the composer of "Ione," has at her solicitation accepted Mr. MARETZEK's invitation to write a new opera for the Academy and visit America expressly for its production. It is only the leading opera houses of Europe that have works written expressly for them; but Mr. MARETZEK sees no reason why the metropolis of America should be behind either London or Paris in this particular. Nor do we; but—will it pay at present prices, especially as orchestra-players have added twenty-five per cent. to their rates?

Cruise of the Blackstone.

The steamer Blackstone arrived at this port yesterday, from a cruise from Sandy Hook to the Banks, under command of A. S. BALDWIN, Commander U. S. N. Her officers are, Commander A. S. BALDWIN; Acting-Master, P. S. BORDEN; Acting-Master's Mate, E. P. PALMER.

The Blackstone spoke during her cruise the following vessels: June 17, bark Ada Carter, brig Rose, schooner D. H. Bills, Emma Furbish, David Smith, Joseph Fish; 18th, barks Kepler, Alamo, Albion, Lincoln, barkentine Lamplighter, brigs St. Vincent, Reformer, Georgianna J. Bickmore, George Amos, and pilot-boat Ezra Nye, of New-York; 19th, ship Missouri, barks St. Olaf, Holland; 20th, ship Byzantium, United States bark Trinity; 21st, bark Barzilla; 22d, British ship Corsair, brig Alliance, United States schooner Kittaninny; 23d, ship Victoria, barks Essex, Cassimiroc; 24th, barks Edward, Watkins, brig Panope, schooners Emma O. Curtis, Nantucket, Light-ship, and New-York pilot-boats Fannie and Mary Catharine; 25th, United States steamer Curlew, ship Caroline Nesmith, bark Waltham, brig Annabella; 26th, ship W. Libby, bark R. H. Knight, brig St. Peter, schooners Sarah, Caroline, Margaret Ann, Electric Light, also New-York pilot-boats Fannie and Isaac Webb; 27th, whale ship Mary Ann, from Pacific Ocean for New-Bedford, 55 months out, with 1,350 barrels sperm; ships Australia, Wm. Frothingham, bark Jane. United States steamer Shenandoah.

The British ship Corsair was boarded 22d in lat. 40° 38', long. 68° 03', at 3:30 P. M., and was boarded same afternoon by the Tacony. The Corsair was standing to the westward with an easterly wind, and the Blackstone was steaming to the westward steering west south-west, the weather being so foggy as to prevent us seeing a greater distance than three miles. The pilot-boat Fannie subsequently spoke the Corsair, and ascertained that she had been boarded by the Tacony on the 22d.

The Corsair was an English ship, and her master an Englishman, and it is inferred that he informed the Tacony that a pursuer was close aboard of him. Since that the Blackstone traversed and retraversed the locality where she might probably be without hearing anything of her.

GEN. DIX'S DEPARTMENT.

An Important and Successful Expedition.

Total Destruction of the Bridge Over the South Anna River.

Capture of Gen. W. F. Lee and a Number of Other Rebel Officers.

A Large Amount of Public Property Secured.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Major-Gen. DIX telegraphs as follows:

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, June 28.

Col. SPEAR, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania cavalry, whom I sent out two days ago, completely destroyed the bridge over the South Anna, captured Gen. W. F. LEE, Col. HEARSADLE, four Captains, five Lieutenants and one hundred privates, and brought them in. He has also brought in thirty-five wagons, with six mules each, and one hundred and fifty mules in addition, and from seventy-five to one hundred horses. He took $15,000 in Confederate bonds, just issued, from an agent of the authorities at Richmond. This is all public property. No private property has been touched. Col. SPEAR's loss is three killed and eight wounded.

A PANIC IN RICHMOND.

APPREHENSIONS OF AN ATTACK

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28.

Refugees who have reached the Army of the Potomac from Richmond, represent that there was quite a panic there. Only a very small guard was left there, and many of the citizens were leaving and going to Staunton. This would seem to indicate that the Richmond people are rather uneasy at the almost total abandonment of that city by the rebel forces.

Military Movements in Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sunday, June 28.

Gov. SMITH last night called out the Providence Marine Artillery to protect the west passage in Narragansett Bay. They went to-day to take position on Dutch Island and the mainland opposite with their five guns. They will be able to guard that important passage.

The Newport Artillery are also ordered to guard the east passage.

The President has authorized these movements.

Arrival of Captured Crews.

GLOUCESTER, Sunday, June 28.

The pilot-boat Wanderer, of Newburyport, has arrived with the crews of the schooners Ada, Wanderer and Archer, captured by the bark Tacony and put on board the ship Shatemuc, which vessel is now in sight, bound to Boston.

Pennsylvania and New-York.

NEW-YORK, Sunday, June 28, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

You inveigh, with natural, if not just indignation, against the apathy and want of public spirit shown by the people of Pennsylvania in the present danger, and somewhat discouragingly ask the reason. Is it not that Pennsylvania is helpless and seemingly apathetic, because panic-stricken, and is she not panic-stricken because unprepared?

I would ask you, is New-York better prepared to meet invasion? Is the thought of danger to our State more ridiculous to-day than the thought of danger to Pennsylvania was to her people two months ago? Is New-York so very much further from the rebels at Pittsburgh, than Pittsburgh was from the rebels in Richmond? And if between LEE in Virginia and the helpless Pennsylvanians stood HOOKER with his veterans, unable to prevent the mischief, what, I ask you, stands between LEE in Pennsylvania and our helpless selves? Is LEE, with all the material resources of Pennsylvania at his control, less formidable to New-York than he was to Pennsylvania when cooped up in the wasted and barren valleys of Virginia? Does not our boasted superiority in material resources seem to dwindle somewhat at this thought? Is New-York, cut off from Washington, so sure of steady self-control in danger, as we are wont to think? What could we oppose at short notice to the flushed and newly mounted veterans of LONGSTREET and LEE?

I ask again:

Is New-York prepared?

Are we aware that the hour of need is nigh?

Can men bear to risk such insult as the vengeance of our Southern enemies has long stored up for us in rage and humiliation and despair?

Do not, I beg of you, refuse to insert this, on the ground of panic-making. Even a panic now were better than our utter blindness and most reckless confidence. You have not heretofore shown want of moral courage. Be not now less brave. Be bold to point out danger, and thereby avert it. J. B. H.

Obituary.

—Clinton Cassidy, brother of one of the editors of the Albany Argus, died on June 26, of consumption. He was educated at Mt. St. Mary's College, Maryland, and at Worcester, Mass. As President of the Young Men's Association, as Assistant Adjutant-General, and afterward as City Attorney, he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously, and always with ability and success. To the last mentioned office he was reelected, several weeks ago, without a dissenting vote.

—Major-Gen. Stoneman is on a brief visit to his home in Jamestown, Chautauqua County. On his arrival he was received and welcomed in a neat and appropriate speech by Hon. A Hazeltine. The General responded in a soldier-like and patriotic manner. He said he knew no party, and no policy but to subdue the rebellion and restore the Union. It was the business of the Government, that is the people by their representatives, to devise a policy, and the duty of the soldier to act and obey.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN COMMERCE.

Mr. Ruggles' Speech at the Chicago Canal Convention, on the Fiscal Effects of Cheapening the Transit of Food, June 3, 1863.

On the second day of the Convention, and shortly before it adjourned, Mr. S. B. RUGGLES, Commissioner and Delegate from the State of New-York, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That this Convention is of opinion that the increased stimulus to be given to agriculture and commerce, by cheapening the transportation of Western products, through the proposed enlarged canals, will so far increase the foreign commerce of the country, that the import duties on the return cargoes will far exceed the interest on the cost of the proposed works, and provide a fund for its rapid reimbursement.

In asking the attention of the Convention for a few moments to the subject of this resolution, Mr. RUGGLES expressed his fears that it might possibly interfere with the rather singular desire of a portion of the audience to listen to political harangues on the rebellion and similar topics. He would only claim for the resolution the comparative merit of being somewhat kindred to the objects for which this Canal Convention was assembled, and would seek to enforce its passage only by a brief statement of a few simple facts.

Much had been said as to the merits and necessities of various channels of national intercommunication, having for their object the military defence of the country, and also the cheapening of the transit of food to the seaboard, but, as yet, little or nothing, as to their probable cost, or the means possessed by the nation for reimbursing it.

He should not seek on this occasion to sum up the various elements of national and fiscal strength to be called into being by the construction of the proposed works, and especially and manifestly the creation and increase of large, and populous, and prosperous communities, rich in every species of property and business, and able to contribute liberally in taxes and imposts to the support of the Government—but confining himself within the narrowest bounds, he should seek to specify and put his finger precisely on the very moneys with which the nation could immediately pay for the proposed works, and which would be, moreover, furnished by the works themselves.

For this purpose he begged to repeat, and he stood ready to prove the truth of the proposition contained in the resolution now under consideration, to wit: "that the import duties to be paid into the National Treasury upon the return cargoes purchased by the additional amount of food to be exported, will not only exceed the interest on the cost of all the works needed to secure that increase, but will provide a fund for its rapid reimbursement."

I know not, said Mr. RUGGLES, how to state this proposition more plainly or precisely, nor can I believe that there can be found in all this assemblage a single individual so dull or so prejudiced as not to see and admit its truth. But if there be any such, let him now rise and show himself. Let him deny if he can, or dare, that every thousand dollars' worth of food exported to Europe will there purchase its equivalent thousand dollars' worth of foreign products in exchange, and that this return cargo will pay into our National Treasury, under the existing tariff, an average duty of at least thirty per cent., or three hundred dollars, and that, too, in gold. I pause, said Mr. R., for an answer. Does no one deny it? Can no one deny it? In discharging the official duty committed to me by my State, I have repeatedly propounded the same question, at Washington and elsewhere, to eminent legislators and statesmen, and have earnestly besought an answer, as I do now and here, from you or any of you. I never yet found the man to deny the proposition. Some, it is true, seeking to evade its force, have skulked away, under the cry that the country was at war, and had no money but for war: that it really could not afford the means even to enrich itself—as if a period of war and lavish expenditure was not the very time and the very reason for replenishing, to the utmost, our wasting fiscal strength. As well might the farmer refuse to sow his land or seek for a crop because one of his sons had gone to the war. Political philosophers have also been found so deeply imbued with the abstractions of the Southern school, just now a little out of vogue, as to deny the constitutional authority of the nation, thus to fill the National Treasury, and reinvigorate the national strength; while others, again, in a spirit of mean and narrow sectionality, have thought it patriotic to

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, June 27, 1863—6 P. M.

The receipts of the principal kinds of Produce since our last have been 83 bbls. Ashes, 26,170 bbls. Flour, 2,111 bbls. and 17 bags Corn Meal, 110,028 bushels Wheat, 112,217 bushels Corn, 6,500 bushels Rye, 34,730 bushels Oats, 4,396 pkgs. Provisions, and 1,177 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Sales 50 bbls., including Pots, at $8, and Pearls at $9 62½ ₱ 100 lbs. Stock in the Inspection Warehouse this morning, 709 bbls., including 630 bbls. Pots and 79 bbls. Pearls.

BARK—Sales in Philadelphia, 50 hhds. No. 1 Quercitron, at $32 ₱ ton.

BOOTS AND SHOES—The demand has been moderate for the leading descriptions of stock, and prices have been quoted steady. The Boston Commercial Bulletin of this morning, says: "The trade in Boots and Shoes from first hands has lately set in apparently in good earnest, and if it holds out during the season as it has begun, there will be no cause of complaint on the score of a restricted market. The sales, however, thus far, have been pricipally to jobbers here and in New-York, whose stocks of seasonable goods were very light, and who generally preferred a temporary suspension of business to the risk of replenishing them during the last three months. They are now necessarily preparing for the Fall trade, which sets in early next month, though as yet there is but little demand for consumption either from the Western or New-England trade. Though prices of both stock and work rule high, manufacturers are operating to the full extent of their capacity, and there is some danger of an over-production, unless the extra war consumption shall prove an adequate safety-valve to the market."

COAL—Has been in good demand, and Anthracite has been quoted up to $8@$9 ₱ ton. The Philadelphia North American says: "The scarcity of labor in the interior and the prospect of a further advance in the rates of freight and toll on the 1st of the month, has given an upward tendency to the market, and the dealers are asking a further advance, with an active inquiry to go east and to supply the Government at fully former rates; most kinds of coal continue scarce."

COTTON—Has been in lively request, at buoyant prices. Middling 66c.@68c., chiefly 67c. ₱ lb. Sales and resales, 3,160 bales.

FISH—Holders of Dry Cod and Pickled Mackerel have been asking a shade higher prices, but transactions have been restricted. Herring have been abundant and depressed.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been less active to-day. The principal inquiry has been for fresh-ground Extra State and shipping brands of round-hoop Extra Ohio, prices of which have been quoted very firm. Other kinds have been in limited request, and quite heavy. Sales, since our last, 12,000 bbls., including superfine State and Western at $4 50@$5; poor to choice extra State at $5 35@$7, chiefly at $5 60@$5 80; round-hoop extra Ohio, shipping brands, at $5 90@$6 10 ₱ bbl.

| Superfine State and Western | $4 50 @$5 00 |
| Extra State | 5 35 @ 6 00 |

Southern Flour is quiet, at former prices; sales since our last, 1,300 bbls., at $6 15@$6 95 for poor to good superfine; $7@$8 40 for fancy to choice brands, and $8 50@$9 25 for very superior family brands, ₱ bbl. Canadian Flour is less buoyant; sales, 510 bbls. Extra, at $5 40@$7 80 ₱ bbl. Rye Flour is inactive, at $3 40@$5 25 for fine and superfine, ₱ bbl. Corn Meal continues in moderate request, at $4 10@$4 15 for Jersey, $4 50 for Atlantic Mills, and $4 50 for Brandywine, ₱ bbl. Sales, 300 bbls.

GRAIN—Wheat has been rather sparingly offered, and has been quoted very firm, but the demand has not been active. Sales have been made of 104,000 bushels, including White Western at $1 65; Amber Western, $1 49@$1 52; Red Western, (Winter,) at $1 44@$1 49; Amber Iowa and Wisconsin at $1 41@$1 43; Milwaukee Club at $1 26@$1 41; Chicago Spring at $1 15@$1 36, and Amber State at $1 50 ₱ bushel. ## NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

A report that Gen. Hooker has been relieved of the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Meade appointed in his place, comes to us through our Special Washington Correspondent.

An authorized dispatch from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, published yesterday, announced that the Army was in motion, and would soon be to the front and north of Baltimore. We are enabled further to say that the entire army is on the north side of the Potomac, and will soon be heard from by the public. The locations of the various corps, so far as they are known to us, it would be improper to disclose. The whole rebel army is also on the north side of the Potomac, but it is very much scattered. The last corps, under A. P. Hill, crossed at Williamsport on Friday, and was on Saturday at Hagerstown. Longstreet's corps has also passed through Hagerstown. Gen. Lee himself is said to have been at Hagerstown on Friday. The rebels recently on South Mountain and at Boonsboro, Md., appear to have left those localities, and to be concentrating at Sharpsburgh. Rebel wagon trains loaded with grain, plundered from the farmers of Pennsylvania, have begun to return by way of Smithsburgh and Hagerstown. Large droves of cattle, sheep, hogs and horses are also being driven in the same direction. A dispatch from Baltimore, published yesterday, announced that the rebels were at Glen Rock, on the Northern Central Railroad, forty-three miles from Baltimore, tearing up the track there, but a dispatch received last evening states that the telegraph was working to Glen Rock. The rebels were, however, at Hanover Junction, six miles beyond, at work destroying the railroad, and it is known that they have also been operating at York, some twenty miles beyond.

The rebel column advancing on Harrisburgh occupied Carlisle about 10 o'clock on Saturday evening, our forces retiring. The rebels continued to advance cautiously, and yesterday made their appearance before the fortifications on the other side of the river, throwing a number of shell during the afternoon. At 6 o'clock the rebels were within three miles of the fortifications. At 8 o'clock the bridge on the Susquehanna, at Columbia, was in flames, having been destroyed to prevent the crossing of the rebels there. There had been no general engagement at last accounts.

The rebel force which was advancing westward from the Cumberland Valley road, and had reached McConnellsburgh, are reported to have evacuated that place and to have retreated eastward toward Chambersburgh again. The telegraph operator returned to McConnellsburgh on Friday evening. The rebel force which was there consisted of 1,500 mounted infantry, with a section of artillery.

A squadron of Scott's 900 cavalry, on Saturday morning, had an encounter with the rebels near Fairfax, fell into an ambuscade, and were very badly cut up. Eighty men are reported killed, wounded or missing.

The rebel cavalry under Fitzhugh Lee, on Saturday, made a dash into Annandale, and captured a number of sutlers and some Government property.

Gen. Dix telegraphs to the War Department from Fortress Monroe, under date of yesterday, that an expedition under Col. Spear, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania cavalry, sent out two days previously, had returned, having met with much success Col. Spear completely destroyed the bridge over the South Anna River, captured Gen. W. F. Lee, Col. Hearsable, with a number of other officers, and 100 privates, 35 wagons with 6 mules each, and 150 mules in addition, and from 75 to 100 horses, besides $15,000 in Confederate bonds, just issued—all public property. Col. Spear lost but three men killed and eight wounded.

Refugees from Richmond represent that there is quite a panic there in apprehension of an attack. Many of the citizens are leaving for Staunton.

Important news will soon reach us from Gen. Rosecrans' army, which was put in motion against the enemy on Wednesday morning last, with twelve days' provisions. Gen. McCook has the right, Gen. Thomas the centre, and Gen. Crittenden the left. The columns moved by different roads, but converging on the enemy's position along the Duck River. It was thought probable that Bragg would abandon this position and fall back on Chattanooga, but if he was forced to battle we should hear of it within a day or two—perhaps to-day.

A somewhat startling event has just occurred in the harbor of Portland. On Friday night the schooner Archer, recently captured by the pirate Tacony, entered the harbor with twenty-one men from the Tacony on board, the intention being to burn two gunboats building there, and to cut out the revenue-cutter Caleb Cushing and steamer Forest City. The character of the craft, or rather of her crew, was not suspected, as she was similar to numbers of schooners constantly passing in and out of the harbor. Finding they could not accomplish all they desired, the pirates contented themselves with quietly taking possession of the cutter Caleb Cushing—she having only a portion of her crew on board, who were put in irons—and putting to sea during the night. As soon as her absence was discovered, prompt measures were taken to overtake her. Two packet steamers—the Forest City and the Chesapeake—were immediately armed and otherwise suitably fitted out, and started in pursuit. They succeeded in overhauling the cutter before she got out of sight of the city, and, after an exchange of shots, prepared to board her. The rebel raptors, seeing the intention of their pursuers, abandoned her, after setting her on fire, and she subsequently blew up. The rebels took refuge on the schooner in which they had entered the harbor, and attempted to escape in her, but did not succeed. They were soon captured, and are now in durance in Fort Rebel. The original crew of the cutter were all saved, they having been set afloat by the rebels in a small boat before the Cushing was abandoned. The log-book of Lieut. Reed, who commanded the rebels, indicates that the Tacony has been destroyed.

Forty sail of vessels are reported to have been destroyed, by a pirate steamer, off Cape Sable, on Thursday and Friday. A Brunswick ship was also captured, but bonded, and the crews of the other vessels were put on board her.

At Sag Harbor, on Saturday, heavy firing was heard in a southeasterly direction, apparently some miles out to sea.

By the steamer George Cromwell, which arrived at this port yesterday, we have advices from New-Orleans to the 21st inst., and our correspondence from Port Hudson to the 15th, giving details of the second assault on the enemy's works, made on the 14th. The assault, though not accomplishing all that was desired, resulted in the gaining of new positions by our forces, nearer the rebel works, which would be of much value in the third assault, which was expected soon to be made. A general order, issued by Gen. Banks on the 15th, called for a storming party of a thousand men, and they were immediately forthcoming. When this third assault was to take place is not stated. Our correspondent sends us an official list of the casualties on the 14th. Gen. Sherman's condition is much improved since his leg was amputated. No doubt is now entertained of his recovery. A rebel cavaly force, numbering about 300, had made a dash into Plaquemine, and seized and burned four steamers and a barge, together with 75 bales of cotton About 30 convalescent soldiers were captured and paroled.

An important order from the War Department, relative to the recruiting of veteran volunteers, will be found in our columns this morning.

GENERAL NEWS.

The remains of the late Rear-Admiral Foote, were on Saturday conveyed to Hartford, Conn. where a public funeral will take place on Monday. The body was escorted from the Astor House to the Hartford boat by a large number of naval officers, preceded by two companies of marines and a band from the Brooklyn Navy-yard.

A call has been issued and signed by Horace Maynard, W. G. Brownlow, Geo. F. Stubblefield, Manson M. Brien, Horace H. Harrison, Ed. H. East, E. R. Glascock, Geo. W. Bridges, John S. Brien and W. Spence, for a State Convention, to be held in Nashville on the 1st of July, to take into consideration the measures necessary to reorganize the State of Tennessee, and prepare such measures as are necessary to secure a Representative in the next Congress.

There was a further rise of 7@10 ₱ cent. in Harlem Shares on the Stock Exchange on Saturday. Other Stocks were also firm at the close of the day, under an improved confidence in the Money Market. Gold, 145¼; Exchange, 158 ₱ cent. The sales of United States Stock of 1882 amounted to $1,506,250.

Breadstuffs were in less demand on Saturday. Flour and Corn were generally depressed. Wheat was steady. Rye and Oats were rather buoyant. Provisions attracted less attention. New Mess Pork was firmer. Lard somewhat cheaper. The main business in groceries was in Sugars and Molasses, of which free sales were effected at rising prices. Cotton was brisker and dearer. Very large sales of Petroleum were reported, chiefly to speculators and for future delivery, at decidedly firmer rates. Resin was quoted higher, with light sales. Engagements of freight were restricted, with 634 vessels of all classes in port. The changes in other articles were unimportant.

Strategy of the Campaign.

The old familiar disputes as to which General is getting the better of the other in strategy are beginning to rage again, and they are just as vain now as ever they were. It would save the public a great deal of useless vexing of the brain, if they would remember that it is not possible and will not be possible to decide whether Lee has outwitted Hooker or Hooker Lee, until the campaign is over. The operations in war can only be judged of by their results, which accounts for the fact that for the one strategical writer who is able to foretell how a battle or a series of manœuvres will end, there are a hundred who knew how they would end after they are over. When the victory is won, we all know why it was won, and are astonished by the imbecility of the vanquished; but the number of us who can warn the vanquished of his impending fate is exceedingly small and it were much to be wished that the number of those who occasionally undertake that task were still smaller. Whether Hooker committed a grave error in letting Lee reach the Potomac without attacking him, we shall be better able to judge when we see in what position the rebel force will be a month hence. We have had in the course of the war abundant demonstration of the truth that the object of war is not to fight battles, but to destroy armies, or render them incapable of continuing their resistance. So that if Lee's arrival in Maryland should prove instrumental, let it be ever so slightly, in bringing about his final and complete overthrow, it will matter little whether he got there through Hooker's neglect or through his design.

The same thing may be said about this invasion of Pennsylvania. It is not always possible for the largest and best led armies to prevent the enemy entering on any portion of their territory. In fact, it is often sound policy not to oppose it, when the opposition involves the covering of a too long or disadvantageous line. What gave Napoleon his greatest advantage over the Austrians, and led to most of the military defeats which they suffered at his hand, was that they invariably attempted to be ready for him at every point of their territory.

Invasion is no doubt a very disagreeable and very humiliating thing. It causes great loss and great suffering to the inhabitants of the districts which happen to be the victims of it; but it is not half as grievous a calamity as the indefinite prolongation of the war. Much as the people of Pennsylvania will lose by the presence of Lee's army, their loss will be but a trifle compared to that inflicted on the whole nation by even three months of hostilities conducted on the enemy's soil. So that if their advent on this side of the Potomac tends in any degree to expose them to a decisive reverse, it will not only be good strategy but as close an approach to justice or fairness as the nature of war will admit of, to have let them come. It is not possible in war to distribute the cost of suffering in exactly equal proportions over the whole country. Some must always lay down their lives or lose their relatives, while others only submit to a little increased taxation. No arrangement is possible by which we can all of us be made to shed a little blood and a few tears, and nobody be killed or lose son or brother. So also some must be exposed to the enemy's presence in their houses and stables and barns, while others only read of his movements in the newspapers. So long as there are such things as enemies and frontiers, the people that live near the frontier will be exposed, whenever war breaks out, to plunder and violence; and it is really mere childishness to suppose that this can always be prevented by a government by any amount of precaution whatever. It would be a most desirable thing if it could be so arranged that no one should ever live near places where war is raging, and that marches and countermarches should always be made in regions where there was nothing to rob, and nobody to be robbed; but the military art has not yet attained to such perfection as to make this possible.

We do not mean by all this to insinuate that the Pennsylvanians have no reason to complain of the Government in not having given them earlier warning to prepare themselves for the blow which is now descending on them. Very probably they have been badly treated. But it is, nevertheless, not at all likely that any amount of preparation on their part would have entirely warded it off. It would have simply enabled them to meet and repel more promptly. But it would be mischievous in the highest degree, just now, to have the notion get afloat that they are foully wronged by the mere fact that the enemy is on their soil. He is on our soil—on the soil of the Union; the mortification and insult of his presence is and ought to be just as great for a New-Yorker as for a Pennsylvanian. If the latter suffer more material loss by it than we do, it is due to "the nature of things," and there is no use and no sense in groaning over it.

Removal of Gen. Hooker—Appointment of Gen. Meade.

The country will be astounded by the news from Washington this morning that Gen. Hooker has been relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Meade appointed as his successor. We have had no hint that a change was anticipated; and probably it has not been anticipated long. No reasons for the change are given; but it is doubtless owing to the fact that the Government has at last come to entertain the feeling so widely prevalent in the country, of a want of that perfect confidence in Gen. Hooker, which is so essential at a crisis like this. During the recent and present movements of the rebel army against Washington, the manœuvres of Gen. Hooker were, to a great extent, incomprehensible to the general public; but we had daily assurances from Washington that our army was being so handled and planted as to insure the circumvention of Lee in his designs. Those of us who knew what Hooker's movements had been for the past fortnight, found in them some things that were admirable and others that were inexplicable. But we could only wait patiently for results, devoutly hoping that those who had the Government of the country and the ordering of the army in their hands, and who were thoroughly informed concerning much that was dark to mere observers, were working for the public salvation to the best of their knowledge and ability. If so it be that Gen. Hooker has been removed for good cause, the country will cheerfully acquiesce in the removal.

We have, to the best of our ability, sustained Gen. Hooker in his efforts as commander of the Army of the Potomac from the day he took command until now. We know the necessity of upholding the confidence of the people, and of the army in its leader, as long as he is retained in that position. Whenever we have not been able to applaud, we have remained silent, publishing only the news of events and the details of movements and actions, and permitting every intelligent man to form his own conclusions.

It is just five months since Gen. Hooker assumed command of the Army of the Potomac, as successor of Gen. Burnside. The one great event of these five months was the battle of Chancellorsville—as the one great event of Burnside's brief administration was the battle of Fredericksburgh. Like Burnside, Gen. Hooker had approved himself an able and successful commander in a subordinate position; but, like him, he failed to command victory in the supreme trial. Gen. Hooker proved himself efficient in all the secondary duties of his position; and it was only the other day we had occasion to point out his great services in imparting celerity of movement to the army, in organizing and using its cavalry, and in effecting various valuable reforms. His recent march from Falmouth (we may now say) to this side of the Potomac, was also generally spoken of as conducted with very marked ability, as it certainly was with notable celerity.

Gen. Meade, his successor, is already pretty well known to the country as a corps commander in the Army of the Potomac. He has not figured quite as prominently as some others, though his corps (the Fifth army corps) is second in discipline and condition to none in the army, and wherever it has been on duty, has been handled with a skill second to none. It did not actively participate in the late battle of Chancellorsville—the First and Fifth corps having been held as reserves. The confidence of all the corps commanders and of all the officers of the army in Gen. Meade is very high; and we may now state that after the late battle of Chancellorsville his appointment to supersede Gen. Hooker was urged by every corps commander, with, perhaps, one exception. There is no doubt he will be loyally and warmly supported by the officers of the army, as he was certainly the one whom they generally designated as their first choice. The officer next in rank to Gen. Hooker was himself desirous that Gen. Meade should be his chief. His intellectual characteristics are sagacity, decision and firmness, with, of course, all the other soldierly qualifications, and he has also education and experience.

Gen. Meade was born in Spain, while his parents were residing there. He entered West Point as a cadet from the District of Columbia in September, 1831, and after graduation was attached to the Third Artillery as Second Lieutenant. He afterwards served in the Topographical Engineers, and figured creditably, like nearly all our other officers, in the Mexican war. At the beginning of this war he was a Captain in the service, and from that position he bounded at once to the rank of Brigadier-General, and subsequently, for his ability, received the appointment of Major-General.

Gen. Meade takes command of the army at a very critical moment, and while it is placed in a critical position. As already indicated, the main body is on this side of the river, and north of Washington, but we cannot give any further details. The whole country will unite in devoutly hoping for him the greatest success. And we earnestly trust that, after so many changes, we have at last, in this hour, fallen upon an officer capable of leading the nation and its gallant army to victory.

Advance of Gen. Rosecrans.

We give this morning, from our own correspondent, news of the advance of Gen. Rosecrans, last week. It is supposed the rebels will take up a defensive position on the line of the Duck River, which our army would be ready to assault in the early part of this week. Another theory, and a more plausible one, is, that Bragg will fall back to Chattanooga, where it would be difficult for us to attack him. Rosecrans has heretofore been a word of victory, and we trust it will prove so now. All our armies are now in motion, if not in action.

The Battle at Port Hudson.

We have from our correspondent a vivid account of the second great assault on the rebel works at Port Hudson, which took place on the 14th—two weeks ago yesterday. We are enabled also to relieve a wide-spread public anxiety, by publishing a list of the killed and wounded, which is in great part official.

The attack was very desperately contested, heroic and sanguinary; and Gen. Banks showed on this occasion his usual skill and gallantry. But, unfortunately, it failed of perfect success, though important results were achieved, and Gen. Banks is making preparations for another assault. "We are at all points," says he, "upon the threshold of his fortifications. One more advance and they are ours!"

As at Vicksburgh, we have no doubt that the final result at Port Hudson will be perfect victory. Our brave army down there is struggling grandly, and receiving, as they deserve, the admiration of the whole country.

Growth of American Commerce.—Though the late Canal Convention at Chicago failed to forward the object for which it was called, in as great a degree as had been expected, it yet did good in bringing before the country some vital facts regarding the growth and prospects of American products and American commerce, and the consequent necessities of greater and better courses and means of transit between the West and the East. By far the clearest, and at the same time most popular exposition of these facts was contained in the admirable speech of Mr. S. B. Ruggles, of this City, of which we publish a report this morning.

The speech well deserves reading as a whole, and we need not here either recapitulate or discuss the arguments put forth. The recent gigantic increase in our export of food, which is now the substratum of American commerce, is shown to be but the beginning of the growth to which it must attain. It is this which now sustains the country, the Government and the war. Time was when Southern cotton contributed largely to the work of filling the Treasury; but that day has passed, and food now takes the place of cotton, our foreign exports consisting almost exclusively of food or its direct product; and, says Mr. Ruggles, every thousand dollars exported in food will virtually bring back, directly or indirectly, another thousand dollars, on which three hundred dollars of duty will be paid to the nation in gold. Last year, New-York sent to Europe fifty million bushels of cereals in grain, which purchased at least fifty million dollars' worth of foreign merchandise, which gave the National Treasury fifteen millions of dollars. Beside all this, we send to Europe the Western hog—the hog which is but "corn incarnate"—in rapidly and enormously growing volume. In 1859 we only exported of pork nine millions of pounds; but owing to the new method of packing and other causes, we sent one hundred and thirty millions of pounds last year, which this year will probably be increased to three hundred millions—which is "equivalent to an army of a million and a half of hogs marching across the ocean" to be devoured. So corn is traced through its animal forms, and onward and upward to its "spiritualized condition" in whisky, and in every shape it is the source of power and wealth.

These results are capable of indefinite expansion, and it is from this large view of the case that the extension of our canal system is urged, as the want of means of transit is now the only barrier to growth. Mr. Ruggles says that the cost of all the works for which aid is asked will not exceed thirty millions—the yearly interest on which would be but $1,800,000—whereas every $10,000,000 added to our agricultural exports will yearly yield in return duties $3,000,000, fully meeting the interest, and amply providing a fund for rapidly reimbursing the principal.

The whole subject is worthy of more attention, study and thought than has yet been given to it by the people of the Eastern States.

Energy and Reform.—The Washington correspondent of an enterprising morning cotemporary, telegraphed yesterday, as follows:

"It is rumored here that Secretary Welles is about sending a circular to the Commanders-in-Chief of the different squadrons, directing them to report to him from time to time the speed made by the steamers of their fleets, with a view to detach for expedition service, if necessary, the fastest among them. Information has been received here that the Niphon, a new vessel recently sent on service, can steam sixteen miles an hour. Mr. Fox is said, also, to favor the plan of having some knowledge laid before the Department of the speed of our vessels."

It did not require that our cotemporary should head this dispatch, "Important Naval Movement," to establish the fact of its extreme importance, for any one can see at a glance the tremendous reform that such a rule would work. It is devoutly to be hoped that this promise of reform rests on a surer foundation than mere "rumor," and that the "circular" which is to mark a new era in the history of our navy, will certainly be printed and issued.

Would it not be well, in view of the far-reaching scope of the proposed new order, to establish a distinct bureau for its enforcement? Then the utmost simplicity and directness would be achieved; and on hearing that sixteen or any other number of our merchant ships had been burnt or bonded near the Bahamas, the authorities would not be obliged to resort to the circumlocution of ordering Admiral Wilkes to send his "fastest vessel" in pursuit, (an order that might fairly be misunderstood to mean the one-gun screw tub Dead-Slow,) but could say at once to the Admiral the identical vessel he should send in chase. If the specific vessel ordered to go in pursuit should at the time be disabled in cylinder, crank, or cut-off, this would be unfortunate, but there would remain the most obvious excuse for the pirate's escape.

If the Secretary of the Navy has not already resolved to convert rumor into fact, in this very important matter, we sincerely trust that Mr. Fox's favor of having "some knowledge" in the department of the speed and efficiency of our war vessels, will carry the point affirmatively. We shall await with deep anxiety the result of the cogitations on this Important Naval Movement, of which our enterprising cotemporary should not allow the country to remain in ignorance.

Rebel Treatment of Negro Soldiers and Free Negroes—The Law in the Case.

The rebels have repeatedly of late hung, and otherwise put to death in the most barbarous manner, such negro soldiers of the Union army as they have taken prisoner in battle. The details of their massacre, in cold blood, of 200 negroes at Franklin, La., and of others at Milliken's Bend, and again, at Port Hudson, have been published in our columns. To this crime, they have, within the past fortnight, added the atrocity of seizing and carrying into Slavery a large number of free-born black men, women and children from Pennsylvania. To these matters, in their military aspect, and legally viewed, we have already called attention. We now add, for the information of our military officers, and to refresh the memory of the Government, the special law applicable to the case, adopted by our own authorities.

The code containing Instructions for the Government of the Armies of the United States in the Field, and which was issued by the President as Commander-in-Chief, as General Order No. 100, April 24, 1863, has clearly provided for the exigency which has now arisen. This code, as our readers are aware, was drawn up by the distinguished publicist and scholar, Francis Lieber, LL.D., and as it is now law, there is no doubt that the President is bound to see to its enforcement, and our Generals to its execution.

The special paragraphs to which we call attention are these:

56. A prisoner of war is subject to no punishment for being a public enemy, nor is any revenge wreaked upon him by the intentional infliction of any suffering, or disgrace, by cruel imprisonment, want of food, by mutilation, death, or any other barbarity.

57. So soon as a man is armed by a sovereign Government, and takes the soldier's oath of fidelity, he is a belligerent; his killing, wounding, or other warlike acts, are no individual crimes or offences. No belligerent has a right to declare that enemies of a certain class, color, or condition, when properly organized as soldiers, will not be treated by him as public enemies.

58. The law of nations knows of no distinction of color, and if an enemy of the United States should enslave and sell any captured persons of their army, it would be a case for the severest retaliation, if not redressed upon complaint.

The United States cannot retaliate by enslavement; therefore death must be the retaliation for this crime against the law of nations.

In a previous paragraph, the code (the first of the kind, by the way, that has been used in any country) speaks of retaliation thus:

27. The law of war can no more wholly dispense with retaliation than can the law of nations, of which it is a branch. Yet civilized nations acknowledge retaliation as the sternest feature of war. A reckless enemy often leaves to his opponent no other means of securing himself against the repetition of barbarous outrage.

Dr. Lieber's military code, or rather the National Military Code, is simply a digest of the laws of war that prevail among, and are enforced by, civilized nations. It is a most admirable digest—concise, clear and just—and if it was, as it certainly should be, rigidly and universally enforced, in all its details, during the war, it would at once simplify and settle many of the most embarrassing military questions.

The Missouri State Convention.

Jefferson City, Saturday, June 27.

A motion by Mr. Henderson, to reconsider the vote of yesterday, by which it was agreed to submit the ordinance of emancipation to the people, was carried, 65 to 21.

The question then recurring on adopting the report of the Committee, Mr. Drake moved to amend by substituting 1866 as the date of emancipation, instead of 1876.

Gov. Gamble moved to amend by striking out the second section of the ordinance and substituting the following: "Slavery shall cease to exist in Missouri on the 4th of July, 1876; but all slaves, emancipated by this ordinance, shall remain under control and be subject to the authority of their owners, as servants, during the following periods: Those from and over 40 years of age, during their lives; those under 12 until they arrive at 23; those of all other ages until the 4th of July, 1874."

Mr. Drake then moved to amend his amendment, but still adhering to 1866 instead of 1876 as the date of emancipation, to which Gov. Gamble assented.

Mr. Henderson moved to strike out of Mr. Drake's amendment the words 1866 and insert 1868, which was carried—ayes 51, nays 32. The amendments were ordered to be printed. Adjourned.

THE WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

The Rebel Gen. Price Said to be at Island No. 37.

HEAVY CANNONADING AT VICKSBURGH.

Cairo, Sunday, June 27.

A member of Gen. Asboth's Staff, from Columbus, reports Gen. Paine with six thousand rebels in the vicinity of Island No. 37. It is said he is preparing rafts to cross the Mississippi, his object being to coöperate with the rebel force in the vicinity of Memphis. Another report says he will occupy Island No. 35, and intercept navigation. Capt. Pennock, of the Navy, is alert and will entrap Price.

The latest dates from Vicksburgh are to the evening of the 21st. The cannonading on the 20th and 21st, reported yesterday, is confirmed, but there are no particulars.

The steamer Lebanon, from Cincinnati to Yazoo Landing, sunk near Hurricane Island, in the Ohio River, on Thursday, with ammunition and Government stores, most of which were lost. An ammunition barge in tow was saved.

THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURGH.

Progress of our Approach—Our Works very near the Rebels—The Loss of Life Light—Our Reinforcements—Preparations for the Reception of Joe. Johnston—The Fight at Richmond, La., &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Yazoo, Thursday, June 18, 1863.

The siege still progresses in most respects as it has heretofore. Gen. Sherman has his approaches so near that his men can use hand-grenades, throwing them up over the high parapets of the enemy. McPherson has made an equal advance. McClernand has not advanced so far.

New vigor has been displayed by the rebels during the last four days; whether from the desperation which a steadily and surely approaching fate begets, or from some encouraging information of promised relief, we cannot know. They have made several savage night attacks upon our working parties and pickets, without success, however. Within three days past they have given a heavy fire of musketry and artillery, by day and night, throwing shell of various calibre along their whole line. Among these missiles are 11-inch shells, thrown from an 11-inch mortar which the navy, under Commodore Davis, lost a year since during the bombardment. Our loss of life and limb has been very slight, though we lose men every day, principally from sharpshooters. This increased fire of the enemy is replied to with spirit along our whole line, the artillery of which has been very much increased. I think the fire during the evening of the 16th was the heaviest of the siege.

A number of naval batteries have been erected at different positions along the line. In fact, work has so far progressed that in a few days the army can await, with very little labor or danger, any order that the Generals may make, whether it be to assault the formidable works, or stand patiently by their guns until starvation and disease compel a surrender.

So much for our front line. Our rear line, or rather the line which is intended to receive Johnston, should he endeavor to raise the siege, is believed, by those who have knowledge of the positions which it occupies, and the character and strength of its works, to be entirely sufficient. A description of it would be improper at this time. So much confidence is felt by our commanding officers, in their ability to defeat Johnston, that I have no doubt that they will wait a reasonable length of time for the rebel General to collect his army and attack.

With regard to the strength of the reinforcements which have arrived since the investment, it is not proper to state their numbers. This much is not improper, however—the old army has been very much increased. Generals Parker, Herron, Kimball, Washburne and Lanman are among the officers now here who had no hand in reaching the rear of Vicksburgh, but will have in defending said rear.

With the commanding officers there is a difference of opinion with reference to Johnston's intention—some believing that public opinion and a regard for his own reputation as a military leader will compel him to make an attempt to relieve Vicksburgh; others holding that Johnston is too good an officer to venture an attack upon our present position. The enemy has been found at different points along our whole line, from Haines' Bluff to Hall's Ferry. Skirmishes take place daily between our cavalry and the cavalry and mounted infantry of the enemy, in front of Haines' Bluff. Wirt Adams' cavalry were engaged on the 16th at Bear Creek, seven miles from our left. At the Big Black Railroad crossing, Osterhaus has had several skirmishes with the Second Kentucky and Twentieth Mississippi. On the Hall's Ferry road there have been several large bodies of troops, but there were none on this side day before yesterday. In the skirmishes and scouts of our cavalry casualties occur every day. Men are wounded, prisoners taken, but nothing so far of any great moment has occurred. On the 16th, Col. Mudd, of the Second Illinois cavalry, while scouting near Big Black, was fired upon and severely wounded in the head and shoulder.

On the 15th Gen. Mower, with his brigade and battery B, Chicago Light Artillery, moved from Sherman's Landing upon the rebels under Walker at Richmond; the same force under McCulloch, which attacked Milliken's Bend, being with Walker. Before reaching the Tensas the enemy's pickets were driven in with a slight loss. Crossing the bayou, which is not fordable, they destroyed the bridge. Our artillery opened upon them, but before a bridge could be constructed the rebel army of two divisions retreated along the Tensas toward Black River. A detachment of cavalry swam their horses across the bayou, and pursued them, taking 40 prisoners. The force was too small for a long pursuit, and the delay in crossing so great that the cavalry could not be supported. The pursuit was abandoned. Richmond and all the houses and buildings in the country between it and Young's Point, were burned.

The same day some 2,000 rebels attempted an attack upon the Federal forces at Lake Providence. Gen. Reed, in command at that Post, with the First Kansas, Sixteenth Wisconsin, and some negro troops, with his whole command, moved out some three miles to meet the rebels. He found them in an open field across the bayou, the bridge over which he had previously destroyed. The rebels had one six-pounder gun, with which they opened on Reed's men. Unable to cross the bayou, he advanced his skirmishers to its bank, and firing across, killed and wounded all the gunners. The whole line at the same time advanced. After a few volleys, the rebels retreated in confusion, dragging their gun. So ended this attack. The rebel army which made these attacks at Young's Point, Milliken's Bend and Lake Providence, is under the command of Dick Taylor, son of President Taylor, and consists of three divisions under Gens. Walker, McCulloch and Anderson. It has made a severe forced march from Texas, for the purpose of cutting our line of supplies at some point on the Missis-ippi. So far, it has been entirely unsuccessful. The Choctow has not been sunk, as stated in a late dispatch.

Ohio Raising Troops Rapidly.

Cincinnati, Sunday, June 28.

Gov. Tod, in answer to an urgent letter from Gen. Burnside, has made a strong appeal to the people of Ohio to organize for the defence of that State. He recommends all places of business to be closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the rest of the day devoted to the raising of volunteers. The various independent military companies of the city are rapidly completing their organization under the new militia law.

For Recruiting Veteran Volunteers.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, June 28, 1863.

GENERAL ORDERS No. —.—First—In order to increase the armies now in the field, volunteer infantry, cavalry and artillery may be enlisted at any time within ninety days from this date, in the respective States, under the regulations hereinafter mentioned. The volunteers so enlisted and such of the three years' troops now in the field as may reënlist, in accordance with this order, will constitute a force to be designated "Veteran Volunteers."

The regulations for enlisting this force are as follows:

Second—The period of service for the enlistments and reënlistments above mentioned shall be for three years or during the war.

Third—All able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who have heretofore been enlisted and have served for not less than nine months, and can pass the examination required by the mustering regulations of the United States, may be enlisted under this order as veteran volunteers in accordance with the provisions hereinafter set forth.

Fourth—Every volunteer enlisted and mustered into the service as a veteran under this order, shall be entitled to receive from the United States one month's pay in advance, and a bounty and premium of $402, to be paid as follows:

1. Upon being mustered into service he shall receive one month's pay in advance, $13; first installment of bounty, $25; premium, $2; total payment on muster, $40.

2. At the first regular pay day, or two months after muster in, an additional installment of bounty will be paid of $50.

3. At the first regular pay day after six months' service, he shall be paid an additional installment of $50.

4. At the first regular pay day after the end of the first year's service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

5. At the first regular pay day after eighteen months' service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

6. At the first regular pay day after two years' service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

7. At the first regular pay day after two and a half years' service an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

8. At the expiration of three years' service the remainder of the bounty will be paid—$75.

Fifth—If the Government shall not require these troops for the full period of three years, and they shall be mustered honorably out of the service before the expiration of their term of enlistment, they shall receive, upon being mustered out, the whole amount of bounty remaining unpaid, the same as if the full term had been served. The legal heirs of volunteers who die in service shall be entitled to receive the whole bounty remaining unpaid at the time of the soldier's death.

Sixth—Veteran volunteers enlisted under this order will be permitted at their option to enter old regiments now in the field, but their service will continue for the full term of their own enlistment, notwithstanding the expiration of the term for which the regiment was originally enlisted. New organizations will be officered only by persons who have been in service, and have shown themselves properly qualified for command. As a badge of honorable distinction service chevrons will be furnished by the War Department, to be worn by the veteran volunteers.

Seventh—Officers of regiments, whose terms have expired, will be authorized, on proper application and approval of their respective Governors, to raise companies and regiments within the period of sixty days, and, if the company or regiment authorized to be raised shall be filled up and mustered into service within the said period of sixty days, the officers may be recommissioned at the date of their original commissions, and for the time engaged in recruiting they will be entitled to receive the pay belonging to their rank.

Eighth—Volunteers or militia now in service, whose term of service will expire within ninety days, and who shall then have been in service at least nine months, shall be entitled to the aforesaid bounty and premium of $402, provided they reënlist before the expiration of their present term for three years, from date of reënlistment or for the war, and said bounty and premium shall be paid in the manner herein provided for other troops reëntering the service.

Ninth—After the expiration of ninety days from this date, volunteers serving in three years' organizations, who may reënlist for three years from the date of such reënlistment or for the war, shall be entitled to the aforesaid bounty and premium of $402, to be paid in the manner herein provided for other troops reëntering the service.

Tenth—Officers in service, whose regiments or companies may reënlist in accordance with the provisions of this order, before the expiration of their present term, shall have their commissions continued so as to preserve their date of rank as fixed by their original muster into the United States service.

Eleventh—As soon after the expiration of their original term of enlistment as the exigencies of the service will permit, a furlough of thirty days will be granted to men who may reënlist in accordance with the provisions of this order.

Twelfth—Volunteers enlisted under this order will be credited as three years' men in the quotas of their respective States. Instructions for the appointment of recruiting officers, and for enlisting veteran volunteers, will be immediately issued to the Governors of States. By order of the Secretary of War.

E. D. TOWNSEND, Asst. Adjt.-Gen.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

MOVEMENT OF THE FLOATING POPULATION.

On Friday, the floating population of Washington began to take to itself railroad tickets and vanish. There was a hegira last night among the patriots who fight the rebellion with contracts. To-day traders in sutlers' supplies inquire for transportation by sea and rail, and packing boxes are in request. The owners of real estate, and those who are otherwise chained here by interests that can't be packed into a trunk, are critical, savage and gloomy on the subject of the defences of Washington, and anew the Government is cursed for not having constructed a railroad to the deep waters of the Chesapeake below Annapolis, and so saved the communications of the Capital from the possibility of a new blockade of the Potomac, and a cutting of the Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio line. On the other hand, the patient and self-possessed wait the development of LEE upon the South Mountain, and watch for the improvement or the waste of our opportunity to crush the army that sustains the rebellion.

THE CAPTURE OF THE CUSHING.

The possibility of the existence of traitors in our revenue and war ships, in numbers sufficient to effect a capture of them, right in New-England harbors, shocked thoughtful people here when the news of the loss of the cutter at Portland was whispered about on Saturday.

AFFAIRS AT NASSAU, N. P.

SETH C. HAWLEY, our Consul at Nassau, is here, in impaired health. The country can ill afford his absence from our most important Consulate, for he is in an eminent degree qualified for the difficult duties of that post. The crowding of the harbor of Nassau and the filling up of the town with blockade-runners has doubled the cost of living there. Our system of administration, in its many imperfections, has no provision for a case like this, and knows no law nor precedent whereby to retain the services of first-class men in important places.

Mr. HAWLEY confirms the impression that has obtained here for some time, that the inefficiency of the Charleston blockade is principally due to a want of vigilance among the crews of our ships; and that this is owing to a belief that prevails with them, that the value of the prizes they may take will be wholly absorbed by the officials in New-York who manage the condemnation and sale of the vessels and cargoes. Mr. HAWLEY represents, also, that blockade running is considered at Nassau to be ten times as profitable and quite as safe as steamboating on the Hudson; and that the life of a well-managed vessel is estimated to be nine trips, and that she can afford to die in a Prize Court on the tenth trip.

SICK AND WOUNDED.

The number of sick and wounded in all the hospitals of the country is about 49,000.

SURGEONS.

Assistant Surgeon NORRIS has been ordered to report to the Medical Director of Washington.

Assistant Surgeon HILLERY ordered to report to the Medical Director of Baltimore.

Assistant Surgeon COWLES ordered to report to Medical Director at Harrisburgh.

Assistant Surgeon RAMSEY ordered to take charge of Chester Hospital, near Philadelphia.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

BLOCKADE CAPTURES.

Commander CLITZ, of the United States steamer Juniata, reports to the Navy Department from "off the Island of Cuba," under date of the 13th inst., that on the afternoon of that day he fell in with and captured the schooner Fashion, of Mobile, sailing under rebel colors, and loaded with a quantity of salt, soda ash and carbonate of soda.

Lieut.-Commander MCCAULEY, of the United States steamer Fort Henry, reports having captured, on the 14th May, in Wacassasa Bay, a flat-boat laden with corn.

The boats of the Fort Henry also captured, on the 22d May, the sloop Isabella, from Tampa, without cargo.

Commander MCCAULEY also reports that on the 30th ult. one of the Fort Henry's boats captured, in Wacassasa Bay, a copper-fastened sloop.

On the evening of the same date, captured a scow loaded with 57 bales of fair cotton, averaging over 500 pounds each. The scow was manned by four rebel soldiers, who were made prisoners.

On the evening of the 2d inst. the launch of the Fort Henry captured off the mouth of Chrystal River a cotton barge loaded with 30 bales of Upland and 9 bales of Sea Island cotton, capturing three men who were in charge.

On the 9th inst. the boats of the Fort Henry captured off the Withalacoochie River a sloop boat, which had several times run the blockade.

On the 10th inst., near the same place, captured a skiff and flat, loaded with corn consigned to D. YULEE.

Lieut. Commander SEMMES, of the gunboat Tahoma, reports to the Department from Tampa Bay, June 6, the capture of the schooner Statesman two days previously, loaded with cotton. She had no flag or papers.

SALE OF COTTON.

In pursuance of the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury and of notice heretofore published, the second sale of captured and abandoned cotton will take place at St. Louis, Mo., on Monday, the 6th day of July next.

PAYMASTER ROBBED.

The office of Paymaster A. B. WILLIAMS was robbed yesterday of $3,700. The money has been recovered, however, with the exception of $200, by Detectives HOGAN and DUGAN, of the Treasury Department.

DEPARTMENT OF NORTH CAROLINA.

NEWBERN, Wednesday, June 24.

In order to secure the families of colored troops in this department from all danger of recapture by the enemy, and for the purpose of educating and giving them permanent homes, Maj.-Gen. FOSTER has recently founded an extensive colony for them on the fertile grounds of Roanoke Island, where they are to have all the advantages of civilization.

Chaplain HORACE JAMES, the popular and energetic Superintendent of Contrabands, leaves here to-day for Boston and New-York, to obtain, by contribution, a steam saw and grist mill, and other necessary materials for the colony.

The National Finances.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28.

The subscription agent reports the sale of $1,292,850 of five-twenties on Saturday; for the week, $6,744,050; and for the month of June, $74,387,000. Deliveries of bonds are made to June 4. Further large sales are anticipated up to the 1st of July, inclusive, which closes the popular option of converting legal tenders into five-twenties by act of Congress. The Secretary of the Treasury may at his discretion continue the sales, or reopen them, at such time as he may deem proper.

The Indiana State Debt.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sunday, June 28.

Messrs. WINSLOW, LANIER & Co., of New-York, have concluded an arrangement with Gov. MORTON for the payment of the July interest on the Indiana State debt, and the funds have been placed subject to the order of the agent of State, for that purpose.

The Military Parade on the Fourth.

The larger portion of our City military being absent in Pennsylvania, the military parade on the Fourth of July will necessarily be small. What there is left, however, will parade, in obedience to an order from Maj-Gen. SANDFORD. Division line will be formed on Fourteenth-street, right on Fifth-avenue, at 8 o'clock A. M., and the honor of a marching salute will be tendered to the Mayor and Common Council, in front of the City Hall, at 10 o'clock. Company G, (veterans,) Fourth National Guard, will fire the National salute at the Battery at 12 o'clock.

The parade will be under command of Brig.-Gen. SPICER, and Capt. OTTO's troop is selected for escort duty.

Gen. Stoughton and sister arrived at the Fifth-avenue Hotel Saturday evening.

☞ THE PREVAILING FASHION OF EMBROIDERY WORK on articles of ladies' dress is greatly facilitated by having the labor performed by machinery. Manufacturers respectively announce that their machines will sew, hem, braid, bind, fell, tuck, cord, gather, etc., etc., but we know of none that possesses the faculty of embroidering but the "GROVER AND BAKER." Some articles of ladies' wearing apparel have been shown us embroidered by this machine. The only difference we could perceive between work thus performed and that done by hand labor is, that the former is more regular, and consequently more beautiful. It is more rapidly, and, of course, less expensively executed in this way.—Home Journal.

Letter of Rev. E. F. CRANE, Chaplain of the 107th New-York regiment:

NEAR AQUIA CREEK, March 4, 1863.

Owing to the great exposure and terrible decomposition after the battle of Antietam, I was utterly prostrated and very sick. My stomach would not retain medicine. An article called Plantation Bitters, prepared by Dr. DRAKE, of New-York, was prescribed to give me strength and an appetite. To my great surprise they gave me immediate relief. Two bottles almost allowed me to join my regiment. * * * * I have since seen them used in many cases, and am free to say, for hospital or private purposes I know of nothing like them.

Rev. E. F. CRANE, Chaplain.

Letter from the Rev. N. E. GILES, St. Clairsville, Pa.

I am, very truly, yours,

RESOLUTIONS OF THE LOYAL LEAGUE OF UNION CITIZENS.

NEW-YORK, June 16, 1863.

The following resolutions have been unanimously adopted and ordered to be published:

1. Resolved, unanimously, That the cordial thanks of this Committee are hereby tendered to the citizens of Utica, acting as a Local Committee in concert with this body in perfecting the arrangements for a mass assemblage of the loyal people of the State, on the 27th of May last, for the zeal, intelligence and efficiency manifested by them in a manner which secured a triumphant and memorable expression of the loyal sentiments of the vast multitude there assembled.

2. Resolved, further, unanimously, That while offering our acknowledgments to the Local Committee of Utica, we desire most respectfully to express through them our grateful appreciation of the noble-spirited conduct of the loyal ladies of that city for their most acceptable personal cooperation in the duties of the occasion; and especially for the bountiful provision made by them for the entertainment of the returned veterans from the war, who were present to signalize in civil life the same patriotic devotion to country which had marked their conduct in the field. Such acts of graceful and tender hospitality, while they could not fail to touch the hearts of the worn soldiers of freedom, threw additional lustre over a scene unsurpassed in its moral grandeur or in the natural beauties by which it was surrounded.

3. Resolved, That these proceedings, duly authenticated, be transmitted to Ellis H. Roberts, Esq., Chairman of the Utica Committee, and published.

4. Resolved, That the Chairman and Secretary cause the thanks of this Committee to be tendered to the President of the Hudson River Railroad Company, for the courtesy and generosity shown by that Company in commuting the fare to one-half for the returned volunteers of this City, on their way to and from the City of Utica, where they were invited by this League to attend a mass meeting of the loyal people of the State.

CATARRH CURED

BY

DR. VON EISENBERG.

Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."

NEW TESTIMONY.

"NEW-YORK, May 6.

I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obliterated, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this eminent and successful physician.

THOMAS GRANAN, No. 539 6th-av."

"NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.

I have great pleasure to testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever. I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unsurpassing skill.

SAMUEL C. HUNT, No. 6 Meserole-av., Greenpoint, L. I."

No. 136 MADISON-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a dangerous discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain. JOHN TAYLOR,

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

SIGHT RESTORED.

JUNE 25, 1863.

My daughter brought me to Dr. VON EISENBERG almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not bear the pain nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. VON EISENBERG, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. VON EISENBERG to state that I have tried several physicians in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.

READ

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

LAKE ERIE AND PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.

The Lake Erie and Pacific Railroad Company, in the State of Indiana, now offer for sale their entire issue of $800,000 First, and only, Mortgage Bonds, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable semi-annually in the City of New-York.

These bonds are secured by a DEED OF TRUST, constituting the FIRST and ONLY lien upon the entire Road, its franchises, appurtenances, rolling stock, &c.

Its route is along the White Water Valley, from Rushville to Union, a distance of about sixty miles, and passes through the richest, best cultivated and most densely populated portion of the State of Indiana.

The road is the CENTRAL SECTION of the otherwise completed TRUNK LINE, connecting the great Southwest at LOUISVILLE, Ky., on the Ohio River, and at an early day with TOLEDO and SANDUSKY, on Lake Erie.

The Company is wholly without debt (except its bonded debt) and being strong in its local traffic, and connecting with roads that must necessarily largely increase the volume of its revenues, the BOARD OF DIRECTORS, with great confidence, invite the attention of capitalists to these securities, believing that they offer an opportunity for a first-class railroad investment, than which, in their judgment, there is no better to be had.

The published exhibits of the Company, together with a map showing the locality and advantages of the Road, can be had from either of the Trustees of the Deed of Trust, in this City, named below, and from either of whom the bonds are only to be had.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

GEN. SHERMAN RECOVERING

The steamship George Griswold, from New-Orleans on the 21st inst., arrived at this port yesterday. Her advices are two days later.

The following paragraph appears in the Era, of the 21st:

"We are authorized to state that the Louisiana State Bank will continue its business as heretofore. This course is authorized by the authorities, upon the unanimous recommendation of the Commissioners appointed for that Bank, after a full examination of its affairs."

The Era also has the following:

"We learn that there is a rebel force of two regiments of cavalry and one of infantry, with a battery of six brass field pieces, under command of Col. (acting Brigadier-General) J. P. MAJOR, at Indian Village, about nine miles in the rear of Plaquemine.

On Thursday, 18th inst., at 6 o'clock in the morning, about 300 cavalry belonging to this force, under command of Col. PHILLIPS, dashed into Plaquemine, which was not guarded by a military force, seized and burned the steamers Anglo-American, Southern Merchant, L. A. Sykes and Segur; also, 75 bales of cotton, which they found on the levee, and a barge, called the Belfast, which was about two miles down the bayou.

There were about thirty convalescent soldiers belonging to the Twenty-eighth Maine at Plaquemine, who were made prisoners, together with some four or five civilians. All the prisoners were taken to Indian Village, into the presence of Col. MAJOR, and paroled. They were courteously treated by the rebel commander, and the sick soldiers were furnished with ambulances.

Among the prisoners were Quartermaster CHAS. H. WHEATS and a Lieutanant.

Capt. ALBERT STEARNS, Provost-Marshal, succeeded in making his escape.

The captured civilians were allowed to depart and go where they pleased.

OUR PORT HUDSON CORRESPONDENCE

Progress of the Siege of Port Hudson—Events Since the 27th May—Action of June 14—Gallant Behavior of our Right Wing—Hospital Incidents—Important General Order—Newspaper Veracity—Rebel Deserters—The Future.

MAJ.-GEN. AUGUR'S HEADQUARTERS, BEFORE PORT HUDSON, Monday, June 15, 1863.

Here we are still, among these grand old magnolia forests, with the almost incessant roar of artillery and musketry in our ears; the desultory firing, kept up night and day, being enough to keep the beleaguered rebels, one would imagine, perpetually without rest. They must certainly attach a deep importance to this stronghold, or human endurance could scarcely hold out against the dreadful ordeal to which we have subjected them for the past two or three weeks.

AFFAIRS SINCE THE 27TH.

Since the 27th, on which day occurred the attacks of which I have sent you a account, there has been nothing going on here of a nature to be made public, or which could be said to go beyond mere preparations for future operations, and investing the enemy more closely than ever. The bloody results of that day taught us what the people of the North are not always ready to believe, viz.: That it is far easier to talk of taking a strongly fortified place than to do it, and our brave fellows are now paying the dear penalty of that insane supineness which ever permitted such a fortress as Port Hudson to be built, when we could, at one time, have prevented it with scarcely more than a corporal's guard.

All that the 27th of May left us we not only retain, but have gone far beyond. Along our whole line, from the extreme right to the extreme left, we have been gradually gaining upon the enemy, dismounting their guns as fast as they are remounted, picking off, by our splendid sharpshooters, every man who dared to show his head above their ramparts, and by these means rendering their armaments almost useless, as we steal up closer and closer to them. In some places we have got our batteries to within 200 yards of them, and it is really terrible to peep through the embrasures of one of them and almost look down the throats of the enemy's missiles, so close to us in front.

ACTION OF JUNE 11.

This matters continued until yesterday, when the commanding General, deeming the time had arrived to give the rebels another strong dose, gave the order for one more simultaneous attack.

It was as late as 10 P. M., of Saturday, June 13, that Gen. AUGUR, who had just returned from the headquarters of Gen. BANKS, told his Staff that they were to be in motion at 3 A. M. of the next day. We all immediately hurried off to snatch a few hours' rest, and when I awoke at 3 o'clock I found the General and his Staff already at breakfast. In half an hour afterwards they were all off to the field, whither I speedily followed them.

Before dawn the most terrific cannonading commenced along our whole line that ever stunned mortal ears. The shells bursting over Port Hudson, mingled with their own firing and that of our fleet, and the dense clouds of our artillery, gave the place the appearance of one vast conflagration just about to burst into flame.

After two hours of this dreadful cannonading, there was a comparative lull, and the sharp and continuous rattle of musketry told where the work of death was going on most furiously. This was at the right, where Gen. GROVER'S division was placed, and under him those gallant and fearless soldiers, Gens. WEITZEL and PAINE.

If WEITZEL had the larger share in the work of the 27th, that duty seemed to-day to fall upon the command immediately under Gen. PAINE.

The forces of the latter consisted of the Eighth New-Hampshire, Capt. BARZETT, and the Fourth Wisconsin, under Capt. MOORE, who were in advance as skirmishers. Behind these came five companies of the Fourth Massachusetts and the One Hundred and Tenth New-York, under Capt. BARTLETT, followed by four companies of the Third brigade. Closely upon these came the Third brigade, under Col. GOODING, and composed of the Thirty-first Massachusetts, Lieut. Col. HOPKINS; Thirty-eighth Massachusetts, Maj. RICHARDSON; Fifty-third Massachusetts, Col. KIMBALL; One Hundred and Fifty-sixth New-York, Col. SHARPE, and One Hundred and Seventy-fifth New-York, Col. BRYAN, who was killed. Then the Second brigade, under Col. A. FEARING, and composed of the One Hundred and Thirty-third New-York, Col. CURRIER, and the One Hundred and Seventy-third New-York, Maj. GALWAY; the rest of this brigade being detailed as skirmishers. After the Second came the First brigade, under Col. FERRIS, of the Twenty-eighth Connecticut, and composed of the Twenty-eighth Connecticut, the Fourth Massachusetts, Col. WALKER, and four companies of the One Hundred and Tenth New-York, under Maj. HAMILTON. These were all followed up by the necessary number of pioneers and 1 NIMM'S Massachusetts battery.

At 3.30 A. M., of Sunday, June 14, the column formed on the Clinton road and commenced moving. At about 4 A. M. the skirmishers moved right up to the scene of action—Gen. PAINE being with them in advancing, and the deadly work commenced—the enemy pouring in upon them the most terrible volleys, and our dauntless men combatting their way right up to the enemy's breastworks. For hours the carnage continued furiously—our determined soldiers, in spite of their General being seriously wounded, and in spite of the fearful odds against them of fighting against men snugly screened behind their barriers—keeping up the fight with the most indomitable bravery. It was impossible for any men, under their circumstances, to show more reckless disregard of death.

But Port Hudson was destined not to be carried this time—at that point—at any rate. Owing to the horrible inequalities of the ground, and the impediments which the overwhelming slaughter of our advance had created, the whole column was not able to come up as expected, and late in the afternoon our troops had to be withdrawn. During the intensest part of the struggle, it is only fair to say that Col. KIMBALL, of the Fifty-third, and Col. CURRIER, of the One Hundred and Thirty-third New-York, advanced most gallantly with their men to reinforce those in front.

It is impossible to overrate the courage and endurance which Gen. PAINE showed on this occasion. Although so severely wounded in the leg as to be quite disabled, he would not consent to leave the field, but remained there during the long sultry day to cheer on his men, at the momentary risk of being killed by some rebel shot.

Various efforts were made by his men to get him off the field, or at least to get refreshment to him, and two gallant fellows, on two separate occasions, lost their lives in the attempt. One was E. P. WOODS, private, of Company E, Eighth New-Hampshire, and the other JOHN WILLIAMS, Company D, Thirty-first Massachusetts. I happened to be at the hospital when the latter poor fellow was brought in. He had been shot clean through the breast, and lingered but a few minutes after his arrival there.

While at this hospital, witnessing the horrible spectacle of the wounded being brought in—something more painful to contemplate than the battle-field itself—a personal incident occurred to me which was deeply impressive. I was dismounting from my horse, when a soldier, who was gazing at me most intently, said: "The owner of that saddle is dying within a few feet of you, over there"—pointing to where two or three dozen men were lying on the shady greensward, in all forms of mutilation. "Do you know me?" I asked. "No; but I know that saddle was Lieut. BOND'S. I've sat in it too often not to know it." Hurrying to the spot indicated, I found it was indeed too true. There lay the young and gallant Lieut. N. F. BOND, of Co. D, Thirty-first Massachusetts, flat on his back, and—as if proud of his wound, as he well may be—with his broad, manly bosom bared, and showing a rifle shot wound in the centre of his right breast.

Learning from his attendants, who were bending over and fanning him, that he was still conscious and might be spoken to, I bent forward and took his cold, clammy hand in mine. "Who is it?" he inquired, looking up languidly. "A friend—don't you remember who bought that saddle of you near the sugar house?" "Yes, I remember. Ah! Sir, you will have to set me down among the items." "Oh, no, Lieutenant, I hope not," I replied, although my heart belied my speech, for death seemed stamped upon every lineament. I left him as another glorious martyr to his country's cause; but I am glad to say that, at this moment of writing, I hear the ball has been extracted, that he is doing well, and hopes are entertained of his recovery. Judging from what his own men say of him, (and I find this one of the surest tests of merit,) a braver young man does not live in the United States service. Before leaving this hospital, I cannot refrain from bearing my testimony to the unceasing and faithful attention toward the wounded which I noticed on the part of Surgeon L. C. HARTWELL, Medical Director of the Third Division.

Before Gen. PAINE was wounded, he had succeeded in getting five regiments within three or four rods of the enemy's works,—some of the skirmishers actually getting inside.

Our loss on this occasion was very great—the killed, wounded and missing of PAINE'S command reaching to nearly seven hundred. A number of officers and privates (among them Capt. STANYARD, of the Eighth New-Hampshire, Lieut. HARSLEY and Lieut. NEWELL, of the same) being wounded, were ordered in as prisoners, under threat of being shot from the enemy's works. Gen. PAINE was shot below the knee of the left leg, shattering both bones, but hopes are still entertained of saving his leg. He was not brought off the field till night time, when his wound was dressed and he immediately conveyed to New-Orleans.

While this was going on in one portion of Gen. GROVER'S command, the remainder, if not so hotly pressed, were scarcely less actively engaged.

At 2 A. M. the troops under Gen. WEITZEL'S immediate command got into motion from their present locality, (which they so gallantly won on the 27th of May, and have held ever since,) and advanced round to the left to Col. DUDLEY'S front, leaving five companies on picket line. The attack—for assaults those demonstrations can scarcely be called—was made by two columns in two different places. The column on the right was composed of GROVER'S division and WEITZEL'S brigade, under command of Gen. WEITZEL, while the left was composed of Gen. EMORY'S division, under command of Gen. PAINE—whose doings I have just recorded. Col. DUDLEY'S brigade, of AUGUR'S division, was held in reserve.

The forces under Gen. WEITZEL comprised his own brigade, formed of the Eighth Vermont, Lieut.-Col. DILLINGHAM; Twelfth Connecticut, Lieut.-Col. PECK; Seventy-fifth New-York, Lieut.-Col. BABCOCK; One Hundred and Fourteenth New-York, Lieut.-Col. PERLEE, and two regiments of GROVER'S division—the Twenty-fourth Connecticut and Fifty-second Massachusetts.

The history of the action on the part of Gen. WEITZEL would be but a counterpart of that of Gen. PAINE—the same obstacles to overcome, the same indomitable bravery in opposing them, the same temporary suspension of hostilities in the face of opposition too elaborately difficult to be surmounted for the moment.

Of what was going on at the extreme left, under Gen. DWIGHT, I am not yet so well informed, for correspondents cannot be omnipresent, though many would have them so, and I would rather tell your readers nothing than give them incorrect information. I, therefore, do not feel myself in a position either to support or oppose the rumors which I hear everywhere—and among officers of very high rank—that the right wing did not come up as promptly to the mark as it was supposed they would have to do, if we would divide the enemy and keep them from concentrating their power, as they certainly did, upon our valorous and devoted right wing. The very same complaint was made—with what amount of truth time alone will decide—against our left wing in the great attack of our right wing on the 27th May.

To whatever cause it may be attributed, it is certainly lamentable to see anything like a want of complete coöperation in moments of such intense consequence to the nation. Go where we will, do what we may, it seems to be our everlasting fate to be allowing ourselves to suffer for want of concentration and coöperation. The very same portion of the enemy who were so desperately contending with our right wing under WEITZEL, on the 27th May, are actually asserted to have—at a later hour of the day—opposed us at other portions of our line, which could not have been possible had our movements been simultaneous. With a plan so well concocted, it is quite impossible to suppose that such an oversight could have formed part of the scheme, and therefore we are driven—in both events of the 27th May and the 14th June—to ascribe failure to some lack of punctuality in carrying out directions, somewhere or other. All I can answer for is that that portion of the line which had been most immediately under my own observation (I mean Maj.-Gen. AUGUR'S) on both those occasions, came squarely up to the orders given to it.

IMPORTANT GENERAL ORDER.

But the grand questions which the North will be greedily asking are: "What have we gained?" "Where do we stand now?" My only reply is: If not exactly where we want to be, infinitely nearer and better off than we were—just as certain of success and determined to achieve it as we ever were—and our soldiers all in the very best of spirits and health.

As a proof of what our men are made of I have only to refer to the following order of Gen. BANKS, and to tell you of the success it has met with. Taking it for granted that the affair will be matter for history long before this is in print, I presume I run no risk in sending it to you:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF,
NINETEENTH ARMY CORPS,
BEFORE PORT HUDSON, June 15, 1863.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 49.—The Commanding General congratulates the troops before Port Hudson upon the steady advance made upon the enemy's works, and is confident of an immediate and triumphant issue of the contest. We are at all points upon the threshold of his fortifications. One more advance and they are ours!

For the last duty that victory imposes, the Commanding General summons the bold men of the corps to the organization of a storming column of a thousand men, to vindicate the Flag of the Union, and the memory of its defenders who have fallen! Let them come forward!

Officers who lead the column of victory in this last assault, may be assured of the just recognition of their services by promotion, and every officer and soldier who shares its perils and its glory shall receive a medal fit to commemorate the first grand success of the campaign of 1863 for the freedom of the Mississippi. His name will be placed in General Orders upon the roll of honor.

Division Commanders will at once report the names of the officers and men who may volunteer for this service, in order that the organization of the column may be completed without delay.

By command of Major-Gen. BANKS.
RICHARD B. IRWIN, Assistant Adjutant-General.
Official.
GEO. B. HALSTED, Assistant Adjutant-General.

To the glory of our army be it said, that this order was not many hours circulated among them before the entire list was filled, and would have been, doubtless, had the call been for more. I will try and get you the earliest possible copy of the names of those brave men who are thus ready to come forward, with their lives in their hands, in defence of our cause. Certainly to them the country will owe no ordinary debt of gratitude. At any time such devotion would be splendid, but coming so immediately upon what many would have considered discouragements, it unquestionably does honor to the whole nation.

"QUICKEST INTELLIGENCE."

I dare say your readers felt, perhaps you yourself felt, disappointed at the appearance of the TIMES of June 6, with so little information respecting the affair at Port Hudson, as compared to the flaming accounts in one or two of your cotemporaries. Two things prevented your getting your account so soon. First, that it was against the expressed wish of the Commanding General (properly anxious to divulge as little as possible of operations yet in progress.) Secondly, that it was not possible to get the bare facts together for your readers to receive from New-Orleans by such a date, and facts, I presume, are what they require. If not, I could easily forestall all competition by writing you a description of a battle, from pure imagination, before it even occurs; and I venture to say it would be found quite as near the truth as much of the correspondential stuff with which Northern readers were regaled in this struggle for "quickest" intelligence.

I should be sorry, indeed, to hear the TIMES subjected to the ridicule and anathema which I heard heaped upon one of your "enterprising" cotemporaries, for the singularly incorrect account of the doings at Port Hudson on the 27th of May, and this by the whole army, wherever the subject was discussed. I found Gen. WEITZEL and Staff in their tent roaring with laughter over his attack, with "clubbed muskets and bayonets"—at his rushing his men "at the enemy's works on the river side," (near which he never went,) and also driving them out of the celebrated six-gun battery that did such terrible execution upon the steamer Mississippi. Then we have a negro soldier tearing the flesh from a rebel's face with his teeth'—instead of all which you might just as well have read a chapter in the Arabian Nights.

Again we have any quantity of people killed who will have to be resuscitated, but whose friends—in the meantime—won't thank the writer for the unnecessary fears that have been caused. For instance, in a list of only seven names, four of them—Gen. NICKERSON, Col. CLARKE, Sixth Michigan; Col. PAINE, Second Louisiana, and Col. —— (DUDLEY) of the Thirtieth Massachusetts, are described as killed, whereas not one of them received a scratch; and one of them, Col. DUDLEY, called here only half an hour ago, looking as well as ever I saw him.

I might fill half a column with the outrageous blunders of this New-Orleans letter, to which I would not have alluded but for two very good reasons; first, because I would have your readers know that intelligence is not always best if quickest; and secondly, because such egregious carelessness tends to throw discredit upon any and every newspaper correspondent who is zealously looking after truth in his narratives.

They are evidently counting upon reinforcements coming to them, and, upon two or three occasions, flying squads of cavalry have molested our pickets. Col. (now General, by report,) GRIERSON is, however too much for them; and they take to flight as soon as they hear of his coming. If the rebels in Port Hudson are counting upon external aid, they will find what we have so often taught them, that it is one thing for them to be fighting us behind their intrenchments and another thing to meet us in the open field.

They all speak highly of the extraordinary efficiency of our artillery. Lieut. TERRY, of the Richmond, has been playing havoc among them with his 9-inch marine battery, completely silencing everything before him, and the batteries of HOLCOMB, HINKLE, MACK and MACLAFLIN dismount their guns as fast as they put them up.

REBEL DESERTERS.

One very significant symptom of the state of feeling existing among the rebel soldiers in Port Hudson is the large numbers of deserters that come over into our lines. Not a day passes but a number are seen going by us to headquarters; and during the last three weeks no fewer than 200 must have made their escape to us. Desertion among the rebels is certain death, if caught, and therefore when we think of the risk that these men incur in attempting to escape, threatened with death in front from our men, and also in the rear from their own, it must be a strong inducement indeed that leads them to undertake it.

Hitherto they show no symptom of starvation, but all confess themselves heartily disgusted with the iron rule to which they are subjected. They assert that GARDNER is determined to hold out to the last.

They had a 9-inch columbiad, reported to go by the name of "Lady Davis," which bothered us for some time, but our fleet stopped his tongue. On our side we had one 30-lb. Parrott gun of the First Indiana Artillery, under Capt. MACLAFLIN, which the rebels christened "Whistling Dick." Dick has become a perfect nuisance to them. As fast as they mount a gun he knocks it over, having served one so five times; he has, besides, burnt up their commissary buildings and stores, and made general havoc.

However supplied they may be in other matters, it is evident that the rebels are running very short of ammunition. This is proved by the chary way in which they fire at us, except when actually attacked, and also that, in reclaiming our dead for burial, we invariably found them stripped of ammunition, and sometimes boots, even when their guns and pistols were left behind.

THE FUTURE.

The air is heavy with impending events, and every one—from the commanding General to the poorest private—seems to know the immense value of the blow about to be struck. When or how that is to be, is more than I can tell you; but it will be decisive when it does come, and that may be any hour.

NEMO.

OUR NEW-ORLEANS CORRESPONDENCE.

Depredations of the Rebels at Plaquemine—Stirring News Expected from Port Hudson—Gen. Sherman Improving, &c.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sunday, June 21, 1863.

Since the departure of the Creole, which was detained for dispatches, the steamer Iberville has arrived, under convoy of a gunboat. She confirms the report of the burning of four steamers near Plaquemine. The Sallie Robinson and other boats, having 12-pounders on the decks, have gone up the river with ordnance stores, &c., under convoys.

The cargoes of the four boats burned, consisting of ammunition and subsistence stores, were captured by the rebel cavalry. Five hundred negroes were also driven off. The captains and crews of the burnt boats have arrived here paroled.

Stirring news may be expected in a day or two from Port Hudson. Four regiments have volunteered to advance as a forlorn hope, and they will be amply supported. A combined attack has been doubtless made by storming the heights, assisted by the navy. The excitement in regard to the Banks is subsiding.

Col. T. B. THORPE'S arrival here in the Columbia was hailed with great delight by his numerous friends in the city.

Mrs. Gen. SHERMAN also arrived in the Columbia, and found the General much improved since the amputation of his leg, and gaining strength daily.

The Medical Director is still in search of large buildings for hospitals.

THE REBEL PIRATES.

THE LAST OF THE BARK TACONY.

Her Crew in Portland Harbor on Board the Schooner Archer.

The Revenue Cutter Caleb Cushing Cut Out by Them.

Two Armed Packet Steamers Sent in Pursuit.

The Cushing Abandoned and Blown Up by Her Captors.

The Entire Party Prisoners in Fort Preble.

We yesterday published a series of dispatches from Portland, Maine, giving the particulars of a daring raid made into Portland harbor, on Friday night, by a party of rebels under command of Lieut. REED, from the pirate bark Tacony, who succeeded in running out the revenue cutter Caleb Cushing, and putting to sea with her. The Cushing was provisioned for a two months' cruise. The packet steamers Chesapeake and Forest City were immediately armed and manned and started in pursuit. The rest of the story is told in the following telegrams:

PORTLAND, Me., Saturday, June 27—4½ P. M.

The Chesapeake has just arrived up, while the Forest City has stopped off Fort Preble to land the prisoners.

Lieut. JOHN M. GOULD, of the Tenth Maine regiment, who was a volunteer on board the Chesapeake, reports that she started on the chase at 11 A. M., and that soon afterward the Forest City came along, which had been in waiting so as to act in concert with the Chesapeake.

It was decided that the Chesapeake should take the lead in boarding the Cushing, and that the Forest City should follow closely up.

In the meantime the Cushing was firing from her big gun. She fired five shots at the Forest City, one at the tug which accompanied her, and three at the Chesapeake.

The Chesapeake fired only one shot at the Cushing, which fell short.

Of the three shots fired at the Chesapeake, two fell short, and one—a round of grape—went through her rigging.

The rebels, seeing that the steamers were ready to board the Cushing, at 12½ o'clock abandoned her and went to a schooner near by, leaving the crew of the cutter in another boat, which was picked up by the Chesapeake.

The rebels, previous to abandoning the Cushing, set her on fire, and at 1:50 P. M., she blew up, making a tremendous report, as she had twenty-four hundred pounds of powder on board of her.

The Forest City then pursued the schooner and captured it.

The regular crew of the Cushing report that the schooner above mentioned came in yesterday afternoon, with a detachment on board, composed of a number of the pirate Florida's crew, who had previously captured the schooner. This schooner the pirates then sent into our harbor to destroy the two gunboats building here. As a matter of course, the schooner came in this morning, and no one for a moment suspected that there were any rebels on board of her.

The first work of the schooner was to seize the Cushing and put her crew in irons, and then steal quietly off with her in the night—taking her through the islands by the lower passage and into Hussey's Sound—towing her out with two rowboats ahead, as the wind was very light at the time.

The schooner captured is the Archer.

The rebels intended to burn the two gunboats building here, but did not get the chance.

STATEMENT OF LIEUT. REED.

PORTLAND, Me., Sunday, June 28.

I have been at Fort Preble this afternoon, seen the prisoners, and obtained an account of their cruise from Lieut. REED, who courteously answered all questions. I have collated his report with all important memorandums from his private note-book, furnished me by the Commandant of the fort, as follows:

Lieut. REED reported on board the Florida, in Mobile, at the close of 1862. He describes her as a small sloop-of-war, with eight rifled guns and 120 men. On the 16th of January we left Mobile Bay, with steam and every sail set to the topmast studding-sail, making 14½ knots. On the 17th, at daylight, saw a big sloop-of-war, supposed the Brooklyn, which passed within half a mile; she showed three lights and passed to the northward; 19th, burned the brig Estella; early on the morning of the 22d left Havana, and steamed to the eastward; burned the brig Windward, letting her crew go in a small boat. Off Cardenas Light burned the Corris Ann—she drifted into Cardenas harbor; 31st, chased by a National gunboat; had the heels of her; Feb. 12, captured the clipper-ship Jacob Bell, showed the Yankee flag on hailing her; burned her 30th; March 6, captured the ship Star of Peace, burned her at 4 P. M.; March 13, burned the schooner Aldebaran; March 28, captured the bark Lapwing; christened her C. S. corvette Oreto, and she captured the ship Commonwealth; 17th April, bonding (query—burning?) her; the Lapwing was afterwards burned; 29th March, captured the bark M. J. Colcord and burned her 15th April; April 23, burned the bark Henrietta; 24th, burned the ship Oneida; May 6th, latitude 5° 34' south, longitude 34° 23', captured the brig Clarence; christened her C. S. corvette Florida No. 2.

Lieut. REED states that the Florida captured fourteen vessels in all up to this time. The Kate Dyer was one; the other names I could not learn.

Lieut. REED was transferred to the brig Clarence, with a crew, as before reported. She was then off Cape St. Roque; ran up north till June 6; when off Cape Hatteras burned the bark Whistling Wind, with coal for the United States navy; 7th, captured the schooner Alfred H. Partridge and bonded her; 9th, burned the brig Mary Alvina, loaded with commissary stores; 12th, lat. 37° north, lon. 75° 30' west, captured the bark Tacony; finding her faster than the Clarence, transferred everything and burned the Clarence; christened the Tacony the bark Florida, (which accounts for the steamer Florida being reported off our coast;) same day captured the schooners M. A. Shindler and Kate Stuart; bonded the Kate Stuart for $7,000, and sent all the prisoners aboard; burned the M. A Shindler; same day, captured and bonded the brig Arabella with a neutral cargo; passed a gunboat without being noticed. June 15, latitude 37° 42', longitude 70° 30', burned the brig Umpire. June 20, latitude 40° 50', longitude 69° 04', bonded the ship Isaac Webb, with 750 passengers—wild Irishmen; at 3 P. M., burned a fishing sloop, name unknown. June 21, latitude 41°, longitude 69° 10', burned the ship Byzantium; enlisted three men from her belonging to New-Orleans; same day, burned the bark Goodspeed. June 22, burned the fishing schooner Marengo. Same day captured the schooner Florence, put all the prisoners aboard of her, including the crews of the schooners Elizabeth Ames, Rufus Choate and Ripple, which were captured and burned the same day. 23d, burned the schooners Ada and Wanderer. 24th, lat. 43° 10', lon. 67° 43', captured the packet ship Shatemuc, from Liverpool to Boston, with 350 passengers; was anxious to burn her, she being loaded with iron plates, &c.; tried to catch schooners to put the passengers aboard; but failed, and had to let her go, bonding her in $150,000; same day captured the schooner Archer, chased the Shatemuc and put the Archer's crew aboard: hearing that Federal cruisers were after the Tacony, and fearing recognition, burned the Tacony, transferring everything to the Archer; thence came direct to Portland; picked up two fishermen for pilots, but they would not serve; took the positions from the Coast Survey charts; got in at sunset and anchored below. Had no communication with the shore.

Lieut. REED also says he waited till 12:30 A. M., when the moon went down, then rowed direct to the cutter Caleb Cushing in two boats, with muffled oars; boarded her, one boat on each side, seized her crew without resistance and ironed them, captured Lieut. DAVENPORT as he came on deck, weighed anchor, being unable to slip the cable, and started at 3 A. M., going out by Hussey's Sound, towed by the two boats ahead, and followed by the Archer, as fast as her limit would permit; laid to waiting outside for the Archer. When the steamers attacked us, we could only fire round shots, and were obliged to fire stones and pieces of iron.

Lieut. REED belongs in Mississippi, near Vicksburgh, and graduated from Annapolis in 1860. He came in with the intention of burning the shipping and two gunboats, which he learned were building here from a coal-laden English schooner, bound from Pictou to New-York. He also intended to catch the steamer Forest City and turn her.

All the Tacony's crew came out of Mobile in the Florida, except the three taken from the Byzantium.

The Tacony passed many steamers during her cruise. On the day the Byzantium and Goodspeed were burned, a large steamer, showing the French flag, sailed around the burning vessels, examined them, and passed on.

Capt. GOULD, who died this morning from an accidental shot aboard the Archer, last night, was a stevedore and pilot, and not connected with a tugboat, as before stated. He was one of KIT CARSON'S old men.

The rebel prisoners are strongly confined in Fort Preble, with double guards.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED
STOMACH
BITTERS.

READ AND REFLECT.

Make sure of HEALTH. "But how?" you ask
We answer, 'tis an easy task.
Strengthen the STOMACH, and sustain
The NERVES, the servants of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the INNER MAN,
And like a watch, that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?"
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply,
IS HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—TRY!

As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-taint the heavy air,
Drink not unmixed the water found
In prairies, woods, or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is threatened evil to prevent:
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for note
They are the SUREST ANTIDOTE.

To resist defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded workrooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with HOSTET
